All O. K. Says Coolidge.
Bad Times for Socialism.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, surveying national conditions, finds them excellent. As regards business and prosperity, Secretary Mellon says there is capital, in abundance, for all new ventures worth while, crops are good, mail order houses are increasing their business and automobiles are expected to set new sales records.

Secretary Hoover reports that our exports are increasing. This year is ahead of the same period last year, and our imports have one pleasant feature. We are not paying England the high prices for rubber that we paid last year. You may reply to questions about the business outlook, as follows: Nothing the matter, if business does not become afraid of its own prosperity.

Victor Berger, only Socialist in Congress, and one of the ablest, best-informed men in Congress, is chosen head of the Socialist party, to succeed Eugene V. Debs. Nobody knows better than Berger that these times are bad for Socialists. When bricklayers make fifteen dollars a day, or more, and rough labor in the building trades gets nine dollars for eight hours' work, Karl Marx fades into the background.

Urging men to "throw off their chains" is one thing. Urging them to throw off their radio set, automobile and talking machine is another thing. Berger would probably tell you, privately, that if fifty thousand Socialists each inherited one hundred thousand dollars, there would be not more than five hundred Socialists left, and they would be a little queer. Such is human nature. Berger, by the way, could have been a rich man had he chosen to work for money, instead of the thing that he believes to be right. Such is human nature also, occasionally, but not so often.

You wonder that sane men demand a great fleet of expensive battle cruisers for this country, and you ask, "Don't they know that enemy airships would sink a thousand fast cruisers, if we had them, as fast as we could send them to sea. Don't they know that it is idiotic to talk about Britain's cruiser fleet, compared with ours, Britain having a real commercial navy, needing convoys in war."

Those that want fast cruisers for our navy know that they would mean nothing in war, and mean only wasted money now, so far as national defense goes.

But there are underground lakes of oil in Venezuela, greatest in the world, perhaps. There are valuable properties in Nicaragua and in other countries to the South, and there are millions of United States money invested there. You can scare a small republic with battleships, flying the American flag. You could not so easily scare them with flying machines, especially if you did not know how to make your flying machines fly. Our prosperous gentlemen that noiselessly run the government know what they are doing when they demand plenty of fast fighting cruisers. They may be obsolete for war, but not for bullying.

The oil business, through representatives, gets together in Ponca City, Oklahoma. They have been seeking a way to protect their industry without government interference or compulsion. That they will find the way is doubtful. The country's oil wealth is being squandered, oil is wasted, hundreds of millions of barrels of it, by reckless exploitation. Warnings that the

HUB COUNT TO AVENGE WIFE SLAIN FOR LOVE BY SCORNED RUSSIAN

Horace Wilfred Lord, Boston school instructor and French adopted "Count," prepared sorrowfully today to go back to France and lead the hunt for the murderer of his wife, Countess Marie Amelie Marcelle Vernet-Lord, beauty and internationally-known violinist.

It is less than twenty-four hours since the cablegram from French police stunned Lord in the tailoring of the slaying in the Countess' apartment at Nice, but ready Lord had fixed as the murder upon ex-Russian nobleman whom Ivy was rejected.

A Russian was seen leaving Countess Vernet-Lord's apartment a short time before the body was found, according to the police.

ANGRA, Azores, Oct. 20.—And then, with the prayer fresh on my lips I got ready to put on my life suit and as I was taking the suit off the hooks so that I could slip into it, George Haldeman called back to me in a song that was full of gaiety and happiness:

"Come on forward Ruth. It is all over." The remark shocked me enough to make me turn around instantly and I turned toward the front of the ship to find the moonlight shining. It was the most sudden transition from a fat stormy night to a welcome moonlight night imaginable.

My heart beat frantically with joy. By this time this ice on the machine had carried us down from our high

JURY DOOMS 'DANCING BARBER' TO DEATH FOR KALE GIRL'S MURDER

Salem, Oct. 20—George Harrison Taylor, whose right name is Elmer Eli Thompson, of Bridgeport, O., was found guilty of first degree murder today in the killing of Stella Kale at Salisbury Beach last June.

The jury returned its verdict at 8:05 p. m., after having deliberated for two hours and 50 minutes. They retired once for instructions.

Taylor, standing in the dock, heard the verdict without the tremor of a facial muscle or the wink of an eyelash, although he was pale.

He had shown signs of nervousness a few minutes before, however, when, with the verdict ready but the jury not yet called back to court, Taylor had been brought to the dock.

As he entered the room, he drew his handkerchief from his pocket, wiped his forehead and then touch

FIGHT FILMS LEGAL IN ALL U. S., JUDGE RULES

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.)—Fight films can be exhibited legally in New York or any other State, according to an opinion today of United States District Court Judge Henry W. Goddard.

Judge Goddard also ruled that exhibitors receiving fight films from persons other than common carriers, or through the mails, may display them without becoming accessories to an offense against the interstate transportation law.

Judge Goddard's ruling was made in answer to questions put to him by the Federal Grand Jury investigating moving pictures of the Tun-

The LAW forbids!

—Milk Bottles, Jars, or Cans being used as containers of foreign substances

Dr. George H. Bigelow, Commissioner of Public Health of Massachusetts, states in a recent bulletin:

"Not only is it contrary to law for persons not owning milk containers to use them for other purposes, but also a penalty is provided for the return of dirty containers."

Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, Health Commissioner of Boston, makes the following announcement:

"The General Laws provide for the protection of all milk vessels and they shall not be used for any purpose other than as a container of milk and cream."

To the Public:

We ask your cooperation in the enforcement of this law. Its violation is a menace to the health of the community.

Your milkman will appreciate the prompt, regular return of all milk bottles and cans.

COOLIDGE REBUKES U. S. SENATOR FOR 1928 TALK

Washington, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Senator Fess of Ohio said, after a call at the White House today, that President Coolidge had taken him severely to task for publicly and repeatedly declaring that Mr. Coolidge would be renominated next year by the Republican national convention.

The Ohio senator said the President was displeased with his statements because he feared that the country would gain the impression that he was talking for Mr. Coolidge.

"From my conversation with the President this is to me," Senator Fess continued, "I gather that he

THREE ARE FOUND DEAD FROM GAS IN EVERETT

The bodies of three aged persons, two in one house and the third in another a block away, all dead from gas poisoning, were discovered in Everett today.

Mrs. Phoebe A. Tomlinson, eighty-four, and "Professor" Thomas A. Hearse, seventy-four, former well-known astrologists, died together in a room of the two-story house which they occupied at No. 11 Raymond street.

While the police were investigating their deaths, a second call was received announcing the discovery of the body of Frederick Anderson, 77, found in bed in the house where he boarded at No. 19 Waverly avenue.

Medical Examiner Thomas M. Durrell announced that all cases were due to accidental gas poisoning.

Mrs. Jennie Stimson, who lives at No. 15 Raymond street, notified the police she had seen no signs of Mrs. Tomlinson or Hearse for two days. Officers Felix Dumas and J. J. Hagerty were sent to the house. Forcing a bulkhead they made their

SLAIN COUNTESS PLAYTHING OF FATE IN LOVE CULT CIRCLES

HUSBAND FEARED FOR HER

At his home in the West End today the teacher asserted his belief that his beautiful wife was stabbed to death by the Russian when he became frenzied over his being jilted.

It was a strange story that Lord told, a story more weird than most fiction; one with its war scene as a first setting for his romance that has now been slashed to tatters by an assassin's knife.

Friend of Isadora Duncan, of Maeterlinck and his famous wife, of Jean de Reszke and a host of others of art's stars, the Countess Vernet-Lord died a death even more tragic and wretched than did her famous dancer friend. Miss Duncan, whose Nemesis threw its pall also across the life path of the Boston principal's wife.

"It was just fate," declared the husband today. "I knew something terrible was going to happen.

"It was part of that fate that Isadora Duncan so often told my wife and myself about: it was also the black thread of tragedy that has fallen a number of times across my own life recently.

"Two friends of mine, my 'buddies' of war days, committed suicide this past Summer. I saw this new tragedy looming; I felt it. And then it came."

As Lord tells his story of the Russian and the nobleman's infatuation for the Countess, the husband was the unwitting cause of their being thrown together.

In France, through a ceremony of legal adoption by the Count Gustave Vernet, noted French surgeon and father of the sixth Countess, Lord became the Count Wilfred Vernet. The purpose of this ceremony was to continue the Vernet title and line, the old Count having no son. The Countess was his only child.

HE INTRODUCED THEM

"Yes, it was I that introduced the Russian to my wife," Lord continued.

"Before the war I had studied in Germany and in France. Then, after our marriage, the war being over, I continued my studies. I specialized in psychology, a subject that always interested me, and on which I have written numerous articles since. It is a hobby with me.

"My wife became interested. She matriculated to study at my side. She was at the Metaphysical Institute in Paris. It was during our second honeymoon. You see, I was married when still on army duty and we had but three days together when I had to return to my post in the Rhine country and await the discharge that came months after the Armistice.

"This Russian was also a student at the institute. We knew him as 'Mr. Rudy.' The wife from Russia, in peril of their lives—you will recall the incident of a days or so ago when an exiled Russian General was slain in Paris, example of the danger all those exiles faced—adopted other names in many cases. I took this young Russian nobleman at face value.

"Dispatches I have received from Nice inform me that the police all over France are hunting for him, and in France the police system is perfect. The police net rarely fails to clutch its fugitive in France. I feel confident my wife's slayer will be caught."

"It was in 1923 that I introduced him to her. This was at an elaborate social function at Clos Marcelle, the Summer estate of my father-in-law, located at Plain-de-Grasse, in Southern France.

"Here I spent happy days with my bride, who loved me up to the end of her life. Just as I loved her. It is untrue that we were separated; I will explain all that to you.

"The Russian moved in the best circles. He was accepted on the same social level in which my wife and her father and I moved.

"As time went on he grew madly in love with her. I was over to visit her and my father-in-law last Summer; she had spurned his advances again and again.

A MUSICAL GENIUS

"I realized last Summer that no good would come of the Russian's futile and mad infatuation. I appealed to my wife to come with me to America; and why she did not I shall explain to you as I go on. She stayed in France, however, for reasons considered good by her; and this fact led her to death.

"Unrequited love of his drove that Russian to despair; and in that despair he plotted and carried out his murder plan.

"It was a terrible end for poor Mimi, my beloved one; but a death I foresaw in the inner conviction that she would live a tragic finish.

"That idea became basic with me and when I received a cablegram telling me of the end of Isadora Duncan, I felt my wife's death would follow.

"Mimi was a wonderful woman beautiful as a goddess—why, she was considered the most beautiful of French women by many. I never saw a woman more beautiful than she. And she was amazingly talented; born a musical genius, she was highly educated, so intelligent that she could think, speak and write in seven languages. She wrote English as well as she did French."

Then Lord sought a casket of letters of hers; all signed Mimi, flaming letters. Letters filled with a wife's passionate devotion to her husband. Letters filled with comment on international affairs, on America and life she experienced when she was housekeeping as plain Mrs. Lord in Fall River, near the

FESS 'SCOLDED' BY COOLIDGE

Fess asserted. "I must admit that I come away with the impression that the President will not consent to be drafted."

Senator Fess said he told Mr. Coolidge that he did not intend to stop talking about his own impressions in the matter. He still believed that there was a wide demand for Mr. Coolidge throughout the country and that the Republican convention would get into a deadlock and would nominate the President for another term.

"It is then up to Mr. Coolidge to turn down the nomination," the Ohio Senator said. "I cannot see how any man could turn down such an appeal unless it was because of poor health, and Mr. Coolidge is not in poor health. The rank and file of the Republican party still want him in office.

"I want to have it thoroughly understood, so that all will know, that I am not talking for Mr. Coolidge when I say that I believe he will be drafted, but I must admit that I was very much surprised by the emphatic scolding which he gave me today."

Dad Who Reared 20 Children on $85 a Month Quits Job

Washington, Oct. 20 (I.N.S.).—Conrad Zeller, 65, didn't go to work in the postoffice department today as usual.

He retired to a well-earned rest after 28 years in the postal service—during which time he reared a family of 20 children while his average salary was $85 a month.

Zeller is probably the only man in Washington for whom a parade on Pennsylvania avenue has been staged. Some years ago, when Zeller's salary was $60 a month and the postal clerks were endeavoring to get increased pay, they staged a parade in which his plight was featured. The marchers carried cartoons depicting Zeller's brood of children and placards asserting "a raise is needed in the interest of anti-race suicide."

A mother's grief was turned to joy today when Carl J. Stanley of Glendale street, Dorchester, telegraphed his mother from Los Angeles that the aviator killed yesterday in Los Angeles Bay and reported to have been Stanley, was another flier. "I'm very much alive, Ma," the aviator telegraphed.

ed the cloth along his lips.

As soon as he entered the dock, his calm came back and he talked for an instant with his counsel, John H. O'Neil, in a low tone.

The jury came in for instructions two hours after taking the case for deliberation.

The jurors inquired whether a second degree murder verdict could be returned if Taylor were found to have been attacking or attempting to attack Stella Kale when she was killed.

"No," replied Judge Quinn, "if he attacked her or attempted to attack her he must be found guilty of murder in the first degree."

Then the jurors retired again to continue their deliberations. They had taken the case at 10:55 after a charge of an hour and five minutes by Judge Quinn.

Taylor appeared nervous and concerned for the first time since he went on trial, and his face was pale during a conference of counsel at the bench prior to the jury's retiring.

To Judge Quinn's charge, Taylor listened with rapt attention and his keen interest was even more evident as the two possible degrees of murder were defined.

Judge Quinn charged the jury that it could return a verdict of first degree murder, one of second degree murder and one of not guilty.

He instructed the panel to use "every-day common sense" in arriving at a decision and declared that even though Taylor had admitted being a tramp and hobo, he should receive as much consideration and fine weighing of the evidence as the most distinguished of men would receive in any similar instance.

Digs Himself Out of Jail; Volunteers to Repair Wall

By Associated Press

Henry O. Mellon, no address, volunteered for a little job of bricklaying at the Reading lockup today—the job of filling up a hole in the brick wall through which he walked to temporary freedom after being arrested yesterday as a drunk.

Mellon, when arrested, was put in a cell. He didn't like the place so he poked a hole in the wall and walked out. Two hours later he was arrested again and put in another cell, where he stayed until today.

In court, after paying a $5 fine, he offered to fix the wall.

EX-DRY AGENT SEIZED IN RAID

Harry Perlman wasn't Harry Perlman when Federal officers were looking for him in August as a liquor manufacturer and seller. He was Harry Gordon, an employe of the Federal prohibition department, and he was informing on his neighbors out in Malden. Perlman finally admitted this in Federal Court after denying it variously, and his admission brought an added charge of perjury against him. The defendant, who lives in Bryant street, Malden, was arrested following a raid by Prohibition Officers Harry Katz and Herman Goldman in Middle street, Malden, last June.

SAUGUS MAN KILLED BY FALL FROM TRUCK

Charles Brown of Saugus was fatally injured today when he fell from a truck, operated by Jerry Holland of Malden, under the wheels of a trailer which it was towing, on Watertown street, West Newton. Brown, over whose body wheels of the trailer passed, was taken to the Newton Hospital with his legs badly mangled. He died shortly after.

LAWRENCE GIRL LANDS IN CELL AS THIEF

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.)—A tall, brown-haired girl appeared before masked detectives at the police line-up today to tell how she left her Massachusetts home to come to New York last Spring to carve out an honest career, but a friend told her of an easier way to satisfy the last whim of her girlish vanity.

Calmly, humorously, she told how she had fleeced department stores of hundreds of dollars' worth of clothing.

She said she was Beatrice Payne, 18, of Lawrence, Mass., and came to New York to find employment after graduating from high school. Unable to find a position, she said, she pawned a ring which had been her grandmother's, for $125.

A girl friend then told her, she continued, how she might walk out of department stores wearing clothing that she had charged, leaving her cast-off garments behind. She said she had charged her purchases to the name of several women of Riverside drive addresses.

She pleaded guilty to petit larceny and was held in $1,000 bail for a hearing.

The girl was arrested as she was leaving a department store wearing a dress she had charged. She said her night in a cell had been unbearable, for she had no nightgown or boudoir cap.

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 20 (A.P.)—Beatrice Payne, who told New York detectives today that she had gone to that city to seek work after graduating from the Lawrence High School, was not a member of the graduating class of either 1926 or 1927. High school authorities could not recall a girl of that name as having been in attendance there and she could not be traced elsewhere in this city.

FRIEND SHOOTS PEABODY CHIEF

Peabody, Oct. 21.—Chief of Police Edward F. Pierce stepped into the path of buckshot while hunting pheasants in Wilkins Meadow here today and his condition at Thomas Hospital is reported as being critical.

The full load from a shotgun fired by a friend entered his left hip, leg and his stomach. City Councillor Norman Crane, Fred Lawrence, Perley Lovegate and the chief's brother, Philip Pierce, lifted his unconscious form into one of their cars and rushed him to the hospital.

Doctors said it would be several days before they could say whether or not the buckshot had penetrated the intestines.

MAYDAY BRIDE SUES HILL AS 'JEKYL-HYDE'

Butte, Mont., Oct. 20 (A.P.)—Mildred Richardson Hill, former Follies performer, has filed a suit for divorce here from Walter J. Hill, son of the late James J. Hill, railroad magnate, it was revealed here today.

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.)—The New York Daily News says Mildred Richardson Hill, former Follies beauty, is seeking a separation from Walter J. Hill, son of James J. Hill, railroad magnate and empire builder.

The Daily News quotes the following telegram sent by Mrs. Hill from Hill's ranch in Montana to her physician and friend, Dr. Morton K. Hert of this city.

"Left husband October 10. Filed suit October 17, charging habitual intemperance and cruel treatment. Found him wild as the mountain scenery here. He pretended to be a gentleman while courting me in the East, but he is a regular Jekyll and Hyde. Have suffered intense humiliation at his language and actions everywhere. He is insanely jealous and threatened me if I left him, but I finally got up the courage. Trial for separation will be heard in Butte October 26. Senator Tom Walker my attorney. Mildred."

Mildred Richardson, whom Florenz Ziegfeld once called "a perfect American beauty on a perfect stem," was married to Hill ten minutes after he had received a divorce, May 16, from his second wife, the former Pauline Gillison of New York, upon whom he settled $1,000,000 by court order.

PRINCE CAROL QUITS LUPESCU

Bucharest, Oct. 20.—Prince Carol's break with Mme. Lupescu was confirmed today by the newspaper Indepatanz, organ of the Rumanian peasant party.

The newspaper, which is supposed to be friendly to Prince Carol, declares that he quit Mme. Lupescu when he discovered she had written a series of articles for American newspapers.

Incensed at the articles, Prince Carol at first believed they were written by his former wife, Zizi Lainbrino. Upon learning that they were written by Mme. Lupescu, Prince Carol flew in a rage, declared that she had compromised him, and said he would never live with her again.

It is believed that Prince Carol is personally responsible for the publication of the news of his break with Mme. Lupescu in order to clear the way for his resumption of political activity.

SLAIN COUNTESS VERSATILE

home of her husband's parents, letters charmingly written.

They bore out Lord's denial of cabled word that the widow had said at Nice that "the Countess and her husband were separated and had been so for some years." For the dates ranged from several years ago up to the first of this month.

"I have been getting a letter each week from her," said Lord, showing the consecutive dates of recent letters.

Lord is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaiah Lord of Horton street, Fall River. On Monday the father retired after serving the city of Fall River officially for more than a generation. The son is as much a linguist as was his wife, he speaks seven languages, and is a teacher of foreign languages. He has written numerous articles, and is writing a novel, "Sonny," which was the agency that threw him into acquaintance with the French girl whom he later married.

MET ON THE RHINE

"Fate again," said Lord. "Sonny" is a poor American boy, buffeted by fortune, but who finally finds his princess. Before the World War began, I had written much of the story. While on duty at Coblenz as sergeant-major and serving then as secretary for General Keefer, chief surgeon with the American units on the Rhine, I wanted this novel translated into French.

"The Countess, then a beautiful girl of twenty-three, was solo violinist giving her services to entertain with her wondrous music the American troops. I met her officially, in connection with her assignment to our unit. I made the proposal that she translate into French my novel. She accepted. And this companionship of author and translator ripened our love."

Lord said that in one recent letter his wife had written about "a Russian friend," and had enclosed a picture of a group on the seashore, some of her friends and the Russian being included.

That his wife after their student days had fallen under the influence of Miss Duncan, and through her had become associated with leaders in the love cult colonies at Paris was stated by Lord.

And then he read a letter describing the funeral and telling the details; among them the fact that the countess had played the music the dancer had requested for her death.

"This intimate association with Miss Duncan cast its spell on my wife—and on me. It all seems to be fated as it has happened.

"Why, a moment before the first word came to me of my wife's murder, I had removed her wedding ring gift to me, from my finger.

"This will be no more use to me," I said to a friend of mine, who was visiting me at the time.

"Last Summer I begged Mimi to come back with me. She told me what I already knew—her heart-breaking experiences with the immigration authorities of the United States. You see, four years ago my wife wanted to come here with her mother, to make her home here. Her mother would be a tie that would make life more happy for her; despite their wealth and social position and influences behind them, the authorities held them up. They were told that a disease my mother-in-law had, due to her age, barred her from entry.

"Mimi was born Nov. 12, 1895, and she was five years younger than I. She was a violin pupil of the great Sevcek; and Jean de Reszke, greatest of all opera stars, was an intimate friend of the Vernets. Her uncles were Carl and Horace Vernet, celebrated painters; and her family is distinguished in French art, literature, science and history.

"Mimi in the course of her musical career had appeared before royalty many times, and had frequently toured the continental capitals, and appeared in America on concert tours. On her first appearance at New York, Flo Ziegfeld, became of her beauty and art, sent her an offer for his show; but she refused it. Then he personally asked her to sign a contract with him.

A FINE WRITER

"She was a fine writer, both in French and English. She was for years the French correspondent for a leading American musical journal; during the war she served as soloist without pay of course, for the French government, and for the American Y. M. C. A., to help entertain the soldiers with her violin work. She also assisted the Salvation Army in its work.

"There wasn't a prominent figure in society, art or science we didn't know. Life was wonderful for us. When Floyd Gibbons made his pioneer trip across the Sahara from Algiers to Timbuctoo, my wife and I accompanied him. It was one of the most thrilling experiences of our lives.

GIRL'S WAY TO INVEST $100,000 WINS HER $1000

TO DEMAND NATION-WIDE SHOWDOWN ON "DRY" LAW

New York, Oct. 20 (I.N.S.).—A nation-wide movement, sponsored by the National Committee for Law Enforcement, for a showdown on the question of enforcing the prohibition law in America, will be launched next month at a series of meetings from coast to coast.

Leading politicians of both parties, including presidential aspirants, are to be asked to aid in enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment by plainly stating their position with respect to it. Any effort to dodge the issue will be regarded as opposition, leaders in the movement asserted today.

DOOLEY IS OPPOSED TO HIGH SCHOOL ADVISERS

Harry J. Dooley, candidate for the Boston School Committee, today announced his opposition to the appointment of "advisers" in the high schools of Boston. Mr. Dooley said he believed the School Department should be concerned only with the proper education of children, and parents should be permitted to retain and exercise some vestige of the authority with which they are entrusted.

In certain younger circles, the classic phrase is—"a wow"!

A whale of a good cigarette!

STINSON PLANE CRASHES INTO STONE WALL

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 20 (A.P.)—Eddie Stinson, famous aviator and president of the Stinson-Detroit Aircraft Corporation, had a narrow escape from death or injury at Marion, near here, early today, when his plane, in taking off on a wet field, crashed into a stone wall.

The underpinning was crippled and a tire blown. Stinson, who with his wife and a party, is on a nation-wide air tour, was forced down by fog and rain yesterday afternoon on a farm at Marion.

After spending the night here, Stinson motored to Marion to pilot the plane to the municipal airfield here. It is thought the ship will be repaired so that he may proceed to Buffalo later today.

After the crash he was able to bring his plane into the Rochester Airport without difficulty.

Stinson was forced down for the first time during his flight from Hartford to Boston, when he made a landing on the farm of Henry Vaughan in Sherborn. He and his party proceeded by train to this city, while State Constabulary and officials of the Airport instituted a search for the ship, in the belief it had come to grief.

Stinson expressed regret for failing to notify the Airport of his safety, explaining he thought nothing of the incident. He completed the flight from Sherborn to Boston successfully, and took off an hour later for Rochester.

FIGHT PLAN TO DROP MALDEN FLAGMAN

Arguing that a saving of $30.95 weekly would result, the Boston & Maine Railroad today requested the State Department of Public Utilities to discontinue one of two watchmen who guard Faulkner grade crossing in Malden.

Malden men vigorously opposed the request, declaring that scores of school children cross the tracks and that the two roadbeds there, being a long distance apart, one man could not guard the crossing properly.

"The company may save $30.95 a week, but what if that saving is paid for, as it is likely to be, with the lives of some of these children" asked Alderman Thomas W. Leavitt.

State Senator Alvin E. Bliss pointed out that because of the freight traffic on that line nearby residents had no way of knowing at what times trains would be passing.

Parents were criticized for "allowing their children to run along the highway with scooters" by Warren S. Kray, trainmaster and spokesman for the railroad company at the hearing. Chairman Henry C. Attwill of the department said that the crossing would be viewed.

VATICAN TERMS GIVEN ITALY

Rome, Oct. 20 (I.N.S.).—Settlement of the 50-year-old difference between the Vatican and the Italian State, which arose from the Pope's loss of temporal power, took on definite possibility today, in a statement from a high prelate.

According to him the Vatican has these four chief demands:

1—Recognition of papal jurisdiction in places occupied by Vatican officers.

2—Recognition of papal sovereignty over pontifical territories to be outlined in negotiations between the Vatican and Italian government.

3—Construction of a seaport to be recognized as papal territory.

4—The Vatican shall be given sovereignty over land where the pontifickate is situated, additional territory to be purchased from a loan of 13,000,000 which the church hopes to negotiate with J. P. Morgan & Co.

Premier Mussolini is preparing to answer informal overtures.

JUDGE GRANT HAS LONG CONFERENCE WITH FULLER

Judge Robert Grant today was closeted with Governor Fuller at the State House for the better part of an hour. He was one of the Governor's special commission which investigated the Sacco-Vanzetti case. He refused to reveal the nature of his visit.

THREE INJURED IN A CRASH OF FOUR AUTOS

Three men were injured, two of them being taken to the Lawrence Memorial Hospital, when four automobiles were in collision on Winthrop street, near Lawrence road Medford, today.

William H. Clark of No. 82 Summer street, Malden, and Joseph Callahan of No. 17 Oak street, Winchester, were taken to the hospital, while Richard H. Davis of No 39 Montvale avenue, Woburn, was treated at home by his own physician.

Clark's right leg was cut, arteries being severed. Callahan was cut on the right leg, and Davis sustained a head wound.

According to the police, Clark's car was parked by the roadside while he prepared to shift a tire. Davis, driving a coupe, struck Clark and then skidded into a coupe owned by friend of Clark's machine with the owner, Leslie Hartwell of 5-0. 5 Calumet road, Winchester, was getting out to assist the other man. Hartwell was thrown from the machine, but escaped injury.

Davis then swung his car into the road colliding with a machine driven by Robert Kearns of No. 7 Buckman road, Winchester, forcing it to the side of the street. Callahan, who was riding with Kearns, was thrown against the side of the car.

CAN'T TALK, HEAR OR READ, IS ORDERED TO TESTIFY

Rutland, Vt., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—How to get testimony from Leonard Warner, deaf, dumb, illiterate and unable to read lips or understand finger language, was a problem which court officials faced today. Municipal Judge Kinney ordered Warner to prepare to defend himself on a charge of careless driving as a result of an automobile accident.

Investigation disclosed that Warner was possessed of an operator's license and has had one for ten years. He is the only witness for the defense since, except for the driver of the other car, no one saw the smash-up.

ASHES OF HIS WIFE LOST, ASKS $100,000 DAMAGES

Chicago, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Damages of $100,000 for the loss of the ashes of his wife were asked today in a suit in Superior Court by Arie Mendelson, Omaha, Neb., against the Oak Woods Cemetery Association.

Mendelson claims he told the association to hold the ashes until he gave orders for their disposal but that last April his brother-in-law, Martin Morris, Clinton, Ia., asked the association to send the ashes to him. This was done. The husband claims the ashes are his property and fears they might be mixed and he would not get those of his wife.

BOSTON SHEEP CARS OFF RAILS AT CONCORD, N. H.

Concord, N. H., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—The Boston-to-Montreal main line tracks of the Boston & Maine railroad were tied up for six hours last night when seven cars of a Boston-bound freight train were derailed at Hookpon, 29 miles north of here, at 8 o'clock.

Four of the cars were loaded with 400 sheep, none of which was killed. A broken car wheel was said by railroad officials to have caused the accident.

"The New Englander" and other passenger trains were routed via Woodsville.

RUM WITNESS SOON MADE DEFENDANT

From role of chief government witness to that of defendant was but a three-minute transition for Forbes Henshaw liquor informer today in Middlesex Superior Court.

Henshaw was charged with perjury after he failed to identify Gus Sylvester of Somerville as a man who sold him liquor. Sylvester was on trial and Judge Gibbs ordered a mistrial after granting a perjury warrant against Henshaw at request of Asst. Dist. Atty. Bishop.

OLD-TIME HORSE JOCKEY ENDS LIFE WITH SHOTGUN

Springfield, Oct. 20.—Clarence W. Stafford, former well-known horse jockey, who celebrated his 72nd birthday Sunday, committed suicide today by shooting himself in the head with a shotgun while standing in front of a mirror in his bedroom in Hampden. Despondent because of failing health, Stafford seized the opportunity while his wife was visiting a neighbor, and his son George was at work, to blow out his brains, in his farmhouse on Ames road.

MAN IS HELD FOR TRIAL DESPITE "VICTIM'S" PLEA

Although his alleged victim appealed in his behalf, Thomas Beech of New York was held in $3000 bail for the grand jury today on a charge of attempting larceny of $10,000 from Harry Iris, owner of a Hingham inn. Iris told Judge Zottoli in Municipal Court that after consideration he was inclined to think that the real estate deal underlying the case was "on the level." But he admitted, under questioning by the judge, that he knew nothing about Beech.

His Day-Ahead Dash to Court Saves Autoist

The famed dashes of Paul Revere, Phil Sheridan and others meant less to James E. McConnaughty of St. Botolph street than his dash from Pittsfield to Boston today to answer to a charge of parking too far from the curb in Boston a few days ago.

Arriving late and breathless in Municipal Court, he learned to his dismay that his speed was wasted—he was a day ahead of time.

It was in the wee sma' hours of this morning that McConnaughty awoke in a Pittsfield hotel and remembered the Boston court engagement. He got up, dressed and sped here by automobile.

"Well, that's punishment enough. I'll place the case on file," said Judge Murray.

Twenty-five other drivers, arrested for speeding through Charles or Cambridge streets, were fined $25 each.

The Story of "No Money Down"

AFTER 29 years' trial there is no credit system today that offers any improvement upon it and as far as we know, none that is so practically helpful to the average wage earner. Our customers know it. So do their friends. And the general public may still avail themselves of its services, its privileges and its many advantages when purchasing goods of merit of all kinds from this Old Reliable House.

BOYLE BROS. was the First Credit House in the world to advertise and sell Clothing On Credit for NO MONEY DOWN.

The phrase NO MONEY DOWN was created by BOYLE BROS. twenty-nine years ago to introduce to the public an entirely new plan of selling clothing on credit without a deposit at the time of purchase. Previous to 1898 it was customary for people opening a credit account to pay down one-third of the amount of the goods purchased. The announcement by BOYLE BROS. of Clothing on Credit for NO MONEY DOWN marked the beginning of a new era in credit merchandising and for the first time in history it became possible for the people to obtain dependable goods without first making a cash deposit.

At once, success burst upon the House of BOYLE BROS. and almost over night came a host of imitators of NO MONEY DOWN.

Imposters throughout the country laid claim to the creation of the term until finally BOYLE BROS. in order to protect their just rights issued a public statement offering $25,000 to anyone who could find in any previous edition of any book, magazine or paper in the world the printed phrase "NO MONEY DOWN."

The reward was never claimed, proving beyond all doubt that BOYLE BROS. had originated the term NO MONEY DOWN and thereby established the Easiest, Fairest and Most Helpful Credit Service the world has ever known.

Our system, over twenty-nine years old, is now being imitated and copied in various ways by our competitors, which only goes to show that the Old Original NO MONEY DOWN PAYMENT PLAN cannot be beaten.

KEEP NICHOLS BABY'S DEATH FROM MOTHER

Mrs. Malcolm E. Nichols wife of Mayor Nichols, was too ill today to be told of the death of her baby son, at the Thorndike Memorial House of Boston City Hospital The baby died last night, after physicians had battled two days to save it.

Although very ill, Mrs. Nichols was reported as resting comfortably She will not be told of the baby's death until her condition improves.

The baby was Mayor Nichols fourth child, but the first to be born to the present Mrs. Nichols, who, before her marriage, was Miss Carrie M Williams, twin sister of the first Mrs. Nichols. She died in May, 1923.

Here's a Dog That Likes His Pipe

It has always been the belief of the Dog Editor that dogs taught to smoke ought also to be taught to read "No Smoking" signs, but here is Roxie, who only learned half this lesson. Roxie, however, is smart enough to break into this column today through the following letter:

Dear Dog Editor—Here is a superdog, Boston terrier, ten years old, and her name is Roxie. When hungry, she runs and puts her forepaws on the table, holds up her head and barks for food.

She wears glasses, coat, hat and trousers, and when thus attired smokes a pipe like any man.

It is nothing for her to walk across the room on her hind paws.

When asked if she wants a bath, she sits on her hind paws in a begging posture and looks up with pleading eyes.

She carries parcels from the store.

She has been the means of saving many lives.

Sincerely yours,
"JO" BOWEN,
No. 184 Myrtle street, Manchester, N. H.

HOLYOKE MAN WINS CUP IN "MALE BEAUTY" TEST

Northampton Oct. 20 (A.P.)—Jack McGrath, of Holyoke, six feet tall, and ruddy of complexion, is the proud possessor today of a silver cup awarded in a male beauty contest conducted by local guardsmen. The judges were seven of the beauties who took part in the recent Atlantic City pageant.

HUB MAN DYING IN AUTO CRASH IN BIG FOG

North Andover, Oct. 20.—One man suffered injuries which may prove fatal, and another was seriously hurt here today when their automobile and a street car collided during a heavy fog, on Turnpike street. The automobile was wrecked.

Ernest Faulkner, of Washington street, Boston, is reported in a dying condition at the Lawrence General Hospital, suffering a fractured skull, fractured right thigh, fractured left arm, broken right wrist and contusions of the head, face and body.

Allen McLellan, also of Washington street, Boston, driver of the automobile, is in the same hospital, suffering from multiple contusions of the head and body and severe lacerations. He will recover, doctors said.

Both men were taken to the hospital in an automobile operated by Edward Rickard of North Main street, Andover.

The street car, in charge of Harry Colson of Byron avenue, Lawrence was proceeding toward the city, and the automobile was travelling in an opposite direction at the time of the collision. According to McLellan, a dense fog made it impossible for him to see the street car in time to avert a crash.

AVOID DIZZY SPELLS

Never well. Always tired and fagged out. Beauty tossed away by neglect. To be beautiful and to keep youth the system must be free from poisonous backwash of constipation which often causes dizzy spells. For 20 years, Dr. F. M. Edwards gave his patients, in place of calomel, a compound of vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Known by their olive color. They free the system of poisons that ravage health, energy, beauty.

You need never have sallow complexion, dull eyes, coated tongue, throbbing headaches—all signs that your bowels are clogged, liver is torpid. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly. They act smoothly and without griping . . . How much better you'll feel and look! Everywhere wise men and women who know the value of good health take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. All druggists, 15c, 30c and 60c.

Vose Small Grand

One cannot be too careful in the purchase of a piano. There are many things to consider—first, the character or reputation of the maker—the quality of tone, material and workmanship. If you are not familiar with piano values you must rely almost wholly on the character of the house from which you buy.

The House of Vose has made a quality product since 1851. For generations Vose Pianos have given pleasure and satisfaction in the best homes of America.

about clothes was expressed by one young lady on looking over these dresses. "Good! Now I can have two smart dresses instead of one at $21.50." A real find for the modern miss who likes both style and a "change."

Smart fashions in misses' dresses, $10.75

FORMAL AFTERNOON DRESSES of Georgette crepe or satin combined with velvet. Even some with metal embroidered Georgette tops combined with satin, and others with rhinestone buckles, snug hiplines, and circular tiers as well as bows. Two of the ten formal styles sketched. Black and colors, $10.75.

BUSINESS DRESSES for the girl who is in business or her sister at college. Dresses with that practical swank that withstands the activities of everyday. Dresses with student collars, or collarless necklines, dresses with hand fagotting or tucking, and dresses with smart pleats. One style is with a satin skirt and velveteen blouse and another with fagotting sketched. Mostly canton crepes in colors as well as plenty of navy and black. $10.75.

WOOL CREPE DRESSES featuring intricate tucking that seems French in its inspiration. Pleating that is of interest in many styles, too. And there are one or two piece styles in sheer wool crepe in the wanted tans, greens, blues and rose. Sizes 14 to 20. $10.75.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY EVENTS

Millwood Hunts Meet to Be Held on Second of Next Month

A DAY MOST IMPORTANT TO LOCAL HUNTS AND TO THE SAGACIOUS canines comprising the various "Packs" is November 2. At that time the Millwood Hunt, with Miss Dorothy Neyhart and Reginald Bird as its joint "masters," stages one of the Autumn's liveliest sporting affairs. It is the "Hounds Trials" set for the afternoon of that day. To it will journey all the indefatigable hunters and huntresses hereabouts, and to it will be shipped, like so many precious objets d'art, the prize specimens from hunt packs to be put through their doggish paces over the trails.

WARNING—COLDER!
Join TODAY the Unique Fur Club,

THE MILLWOOD WILL BE hosts on that day to the Jacobs Hill Hunt dogs and members, from down near Providence, and to the Myopians, its associates on the North Shore. Its nearer neighbors, the Groton Hunt, the Dedham Harriers and the Norfolk Hunt, will be in the competition, of course. The affair may begin with a fox hunt, and if that is the final decision a day is indicated devoted to the sort of informality the Hunts sets adore. After the Hunt there'll be a say luncheon, and likely as not the trials will lead to a dinner by way of polishing off the occasion satisfactorily.

FOR HER PATRONESS LIST, Dr. Sarah Ellen Palmer, who gives her illustrated talks during November at the Museum of Fine Arts, has culled friends all about the world. Mrs. Edward Tuck (Julia Stell) of Paris and New York leads the distinction of her name if not her actual presence for these enjoyable affairs. Mrs. John McKinnon Robertson, spouse of the Rt. Hon. Mr. Robertson, a privy councillor to his Britannic Majesty, is another ardent friend and admirer of Dr. Palmer whose name gives swank to the list. Locally, Mrs. Philip L. Saltonstall lets her light shine upon it, and there are many others important in arts and letters.

DR. PALMER, WITH RARE originality, names her talks thus: "Romance in the Streets of Paris," for November 2; "The Charm of English Spires," on November 9, and a week later "The Lights of London." For six months or more this year she has been delving into the places she pictures to her audiences, so the talks have a delightful personal touch. Just recently Dr. Palmer has been doing a Canadian and New England motor tour in company with a confrere, Dr. Isabelle Kerr. They did the mountain resorts of Vermont and New Hampshire and journeyed into the Province of Quebec.

PLANS FOR BUDDING PHILANthrophies take up so much of Madame's days it is a marvel that she has opportunity for the round that is merely frivolous. Mrs. B. Franklin Pitman, chief of the forces directing the St. Christopher Fete and Charity Ball at the Copley-Plaza, has a motto that says, "Add daily some new and interesting detail," and I believe the latest detail for the day is a tea, after bridge, directed by Mrs. Charles V. S. Purdy, and havin, a corps of "waitresses" from the upper circles.

MESDAMES BENTLEY WARREN, Reed Anthony, Roger Terry, Thomas Wood, French Breed, Daniel Frost Comstock, Donald Hood, Miss Rebecca Hobbs, Miss Marion Morse, Miss Louise Baldwin, Miss Mary Proctor and Miss Doris Nelson are down for a place in the tea tray brigade. The bridge devotees will find the bazaar details much to their liking, for a hundred or so tables in the ball room will be devoted to the pastime. Miss Ethel Winant Parks is directing, and players will be inspired to unusual brilliance by the novel decorations.

UNLIKE THE ST. CHRISTOPHER FETE, which waxes and wanes within the circle of a day, the pretty Brittany Coffee Shop up in Newbury street is a year-round form of philanthropy that keeps the adherents willingly in attendance every day. This shop, done in the blue that Breton fishermen dye their nets, serves the most delicious food on the peasant pottery bearing the imprint of Henriot of Quimper. Really the Shop cannot be called a philanthropy in the true sense, since it is very much a going concern, helping to carry on the work of the District Nursing Association.

THE SHOP REJOICES IN A backing most distinguished. Mrs. Alexander Whiteside presided at the Cash Register one day recently in place of Mrs. Moses Williams. It is Mrs. Williams, by the way, who leads the Nursing Cohorts, and herself carries on a pretty little business for its benefit. Each season she imports from Holland certain choice bulbs and disposes of them to her friends, thus enriching the Association coffers. She finds for her wares a ready market among relatives and friends.

MEEK LITTLE GROCER DENIES HE'S TIGER MAN

Newark, N. J., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—A one-armed, mild-mannered little grocer with a wife and five daughters today was under arrest as the "Tiger Man" whose insistent attentions had driven Mrs. Frieda Abken to attempt to end her life with gas.

The grocer, Joseph Lauter, although admitting he had been friendly with Mrs. Abken, denied his pursuit of her had earned the sobriquet of "Tiger Man," and said she was the one who evinced tigerish methods in their affair. Karl Abken, carpenter husband of the woman, said he would send her back to Germany whence she came to marry him last January.

BRIGGS LEAVES HOSPITAL BOAT

G. Loring Briggs of Brookline resigned today as manager of the Floating Hospital, giving as his reason that he wishes to retire from public service. His resignation takes effect Nov. 1.

"A committee is now studying plans for purchase of a new boat to replace the one destroyed by fire, and I consider this an opportune time to retire, for by waiting until some later date, I might upset plans formulated by the committee," he said.

RADIO DIALOG

by C. WILLIAM RADIO

THE few evening hours last night held much entertainment. Some of it was good, some was indifferent, and some was bad. Some was worse. We could not decide then which we liked best among the local radiofans. The big broadcasts were Aeolian recital, Maxwell, Van and Schenk, Goodrich and Champion Sparkers. Not one struck us perfect, but Maxwell held the all-around championship.

Van and Skenk (pronunciation per Major White) were not up to their heralded ability. Listeners were promised sixty minutes of harmony. Actually an orchestra and soloists shared time with the duet so Van and Skenk had not the major portion of the time. They did a pretty piece in "Rickety, Rackety Shack." And their adaption of "Home Sweet Home" sounded original to us.

From WBZA two contrasting programs were heard. Maxwell hour followed the Champion Sparkers, but Max followed only chronologically. "Blossom Time" was champion Sparkers are champion sparkling, which is a big achievement in Boston.

Outside stations remained outside. WCAM of Camden, N. J., was loud, but "terminated its transmission" early. WTAG made as much noise as a local and so did WGY when fading did not smear it. But all in all, a blanket seemed to have smothered the distant stations. Static was not bad, but then it was not good.

* * *

From our hurried listening to two selections we judged that Karnak orchestra via WLBT is an excellent radio orchestra. "Doll Dance" and "Sundown," while two familiar tunes, sounded fresh again. Incidentally we notice WBET has improved its radiation.

* * *

That heterodyne squeal always in back of WEEI acts as a faint reminder. It reminds us that the Radio Commission has much work to do before it can satisfy everyone. And this will never be.

* * *

We used our electrified Kellogg No. 810 radio.

Inactivity Ruins Battery

Never permit a storage battery to stand idle for any great length of time, for it will lose about one per cent. of its capacity each day. After it has become completely discharged, a hard coating known as sulphate of lead forms on the surface of the plates, and it is very hard, even impossible at times, to remove this matter when the battery is again put on charge.

Care of Babies

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the entire system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good. And it is so pleasant to take. Taste it yourself, and you'll know why "Children Cry for It."

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or when you even suspect the approach of constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. See how quickly all fretfulness or wakefulness will cease.

Only one word of warning: the above advice is true of genuine Castoria.* The kind called Fletcher's, bearing Fletcher's signature is genuine—and does not contain opiates or any other drug that can harm your baby. Other preparations may be just as free from harm; the writer does not know as to that, but does know one family whose children will never make the experiment!

*SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

In a short time we were again at 2,000 feet.

At that level, instead of being tossed about as we had been for the past six and one-half hours, everything was calm and serene and the steady purr of the motor holding us high above that beautiful blanket of white clouds below us made us very thankful.

And now our main concern was the fact that the oil pressure was continually drooping. We looked at the oil indicator again and found that it had dropped ten pounds more and was down to 45 pounds pressure. This means we had lost 20 pounds pressure in the oil supply in a few hours.

"The old motor don't sound right, Ruth," he said, "and I don't like the gauge is lying. But don't mind, we are through the worst of it all now."

And then we settled down for a fight against the rest of our trouble.

George appeared very weary and I noticed that his head was drooping. He had been through so much in the past few hours that the reaction from the terrible battle we had had was undoubtedly having its effect on him.

He was not holding the ship as even on its course as he might and I deciding that I had to help him keep awake, leaned over and pinched his side and told him I was taking the controls. He said drowsily:

"Okay. Keep your nose headed ten degrees to the left of that star and if the oil pressure holds out we should hit Finisterre, Spain in another eight hours."

I was somewhat surprised at this and said:

"Heavens, George, we have been in the air 32 hours. You mean to tell me that we are still eight hours from Finisterre?"

George, in a quiet voice, said: "You're right we are. And if the last few minutes tell me any thing, buddy, I know we are still fighting a headwind."

George then said he would leave the control seat and I moved over in his place.

After a bit, he stepped on on the shoulder and asked me if everything was okay, and I told him that I personally was all right, but pointed out to him that the oil pressure gauge had dropped to 35 pounds.

George looked worried when I flashed the light on the gauge and showed it to him and in a very few seconds he was back at the wheel. He told me to keep the controls while he did some bowing around.

RUTH FALLS ASLEEP

He obviously intended to find out definitely what our oil trouble was if he could. He throttled the motors down to 1,450 R. P. M. and asked me to keep the plane climbing a bit more. He opened the gas-valve in the main fuselage tank and turned his flashlight on the right gauge to see if it was working. Then he said to me.

"Ruth, I will keep the controls and you watch that gauge constantly until it starts pumping air."

I flashed the light on the gauge repeatedly and the last time I looked I knew it was still pumping gas.

And then all the battles and dangers we had been through had their effect on me and I know I fell asleep.

I know this because at 3 o'clock George awakened me and asked me to take the controls while he made another gas check. He put the gauge down in the fuselage tank and I saw him mark a big zero on the log. He read he gas indicators of both inside wings and told me we had 141 gallons of gas remaining.

Then George took the wheel again and told me that he was all right and for me to go back and get some rest as he would probably want me to take the controls again at the first sign of daylight.

It was growing daylight when George called to me to come back to the controls, which I did. The motor was getting worse and we were gradually losing altitude. I had been flying the ship for only a very few moments while George had buried himself at removing the side windows and taking outside observations.

THROUGH CLOUDS

We knew there was no chance to go on and that we had to take our chances with the sea.

George had watched the clouds for a few seconds when he called to me:

"Go down through that hole in the clouds."

I pushed the nose of the ship over and started down, but evidently was too slow to make the exact spot, for the next second George grabbed the wheel and pulled the plane hard around and pushed it into a tremendous dive.

We were shortly falling through the hole in the clouds again and going down at terrific speed.

I again urged George to come back and put on his life suit while I took the controls.

And while we were arguing I had the greatest thrill of the flight when I looked to the right of us and sighted a steamship.

When I pointed it out to George, he headed directly for it. It was the first steamship we had seen since 7 o'clock the day before. We circled around it and could see it was the Barendrecht.

The first message I wrote mined the steamship and I wrote another message. This time my aim was better, and I was successful in hitting the deck with the message We continued circling with our pounding motor and, after we had circled the steamship twice more, we saw they had painted in large white letters on the deck, giving us their position and the number of miles to land.

This sign read: "S 40 degrees W Terseira Azores 300 miles."

DROP INTO OCEAN

The oil pressure had dropped to five pounds by this time, and we knew it would be foolish to attempt to continue. George flew low over the ship and throttled the motor and hollered out: "We are going to land. Pick us up."

I then cut out a panel from the side of the fuselage so we could escape as soon as possible after we landed on the sea.

I saw George cut off the switches and pull the wheel way back. The plane seemed to come to a dead stop. The next instant we had splashed into the top of a great big wave.

It was 5 minutes after 4 and we had been in the air exactly 35 hours. George was touching us he turned around and looked at me a smiling there as if waiting for something else to happen. He said: "Well, here we are, Ruth. Suppose we get out and look around a bit."

HEAD WINDS PREVENT MRS. GRAYSON'S FLIGHT

Old Orchard, Me., Oct. 20 (I.N.S.).—The hop-off of Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson's amphibian plane, "The Dawn," to Copenhagen, Denmark, was again postponed for at least twenty-four hours today because of continued adverse winds at sea. Indications were that there a radical change in the weather occurred before Sunday, the flight would be definitely postponed until next Spring.

FALL STARTLES COURT BY OIL TRIAL PLEA

Washington, Oct. 20 (A.P.)—Albert B. Fall startled those in the District of Columbia Court today by making a plea and argument to Justice Siddons during his trial with Harry F. Sinclair on a criminal conspiracy charge growing out of the leasing of Teapot Dome naval oil reserve.

While Fall spoke, making gestures occasionally with his right hand to emphasize his points, Mrs. Fall sat in the front row of the spectators' section visibly disturbed.

WIFE IN DISTRESS.

She wrung her hands during the three minutes her aged husband was on his feet.

Fall told the court that it was "fundamental and vital" to the defense in this case that E. C. Finney, assistant Secretary of the Interior, be permitted to give his interpretation of the oil leasing laws passed by Congress.

"The law makes it his duty to interpret these laws," Fall said, his voice trembling with emotion. "If he is wrong in that interpretation the United States Supreme Court will reverse him. So long as he remains within his jurisdiction his interpretation is the law of the land."

JUDGE SPELLBOUND.

Fall's move was so unexpected that even Justice Siddons appeared spellbound. Then broke in to remind Fall he had "able and eminent counsel" to represent him.

"I have no desire to make a speech," Fall replied. "I have no desire to testify. But, sir, there are lawyers and there are mining lawyers. Judge Finney is qualified as a mining lawyer. He knows what the situation is all about and if allowed he could clear the situation up.

"I have very eminent lawyers and have the utmost confidence in each and everyone of them. But there are some technical matters Judge Finney understands and they do not understand."

Defense counsel had been seeking over objections by special government counsel to obtain from Finney an interpretation of the placer mining and general leasing laws. Justice Siddons had repeatedly ruled out their questions, largely on the ground that they were not proper cross-examination.

PIMPLES CAUSED ERUPTIONS

On Body, Itched and Burned. Cuticura Healed.

"My trouble began with itchy pimples on my body. They were hard, large and red, and festered and scaled over. The pimples itched and burned and I scratched them, causing eruptions. My clothing aggravated the breaking out, and I lost my sleep on account of the irritation. The trouble lasted about two years.

"I used other remedies without success. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment so purchased some, and after using two cakes of Soap and two boxes of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Gisdys Jacques, 107 Carnation St., Pawtucket, R. I.

Negro Claims He's Hebrew But Judge Says He's Guilty

A Yiddish-speaking negro perplexed Judge Hayden's session of Superior Court today, while he was on trial for alleged soliciting of funds to build a Jewish synagogue or temple in Dorchester.

The defendant claimed he was not a Jew, but was a Hebrew.

"What's the difference?" asked Assistant District Attorney Sullivan.

"Just as much difference as there is between the names 'Jim' and 'James,'" answered the defendant who claimed to be "Elder Grossman."

He was found guilty of larceny from Horace Freedman and Lawrence Laskey, in the sum of $1 each.

300 LEATHER WORKERS IN PEABODY STRIKE

Peabody, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Three hundred employes at the A. C. Lawrence leather plant here walked out today after failing to get a restoration of the wage schedule and conditions at the plant previous to July 20, when a new scale was put into effect.

The men, employed as beamers, spakers and packers, also sought recognition of the union.

The walkout did not affect the sheep and calfskin departments.

Parkinson Heads Equitable

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Thomas I. Parkinson was elected president of the Equitable Life Insurance Society today when the resignation of President William A. Day was accepted and Mr. Day was elected chairman of the board.

way to the second floor, where in a dark room the bodies of the elderly couple were found.

That of Mrs. Tomlinson was in bed, to which she has been confined since being brought back from the Malden Hospital two weeks ago, where she had been taken suffering from a broken hip.

"Professor" Bearse sat in a rocking chair beside a gas range, one jet of which was open, permitting gas to flow into the room until the quarter meter ran out. On a table nearby was spread the materials for a meal. The couple had been dead for two days, the medical examiner said.

"Professor" Bearse was editor of "Star Gazers," a pamphlet magazine for students of astrology and mind reading. At one time he had an office in Boston. Both he and Mrs. Tomlinson are said to have done a prosperous business as astrologists.

Anderson's death was discovered by his landlady, Mrs. Fred Carlson.

CITIES SERVICE OFFICIALS CONFER ON OIL PROBLEM

Executives, superintendents and other officers of the Cities Service Company gathered at the Parker House today for their annual conference. The purpose of the conference is to pool ideas to keep abreast of oil refinery changes.

John S. Cordell, manager of the Boston branch, greeted the visitors who came from various points east of Tulsa, Okla. Judge H. O. Caster of New York, an executive, was one of those who attended.

Drama of Intrigue in Boston Theatrical Life

CHAPTER 33

"DON'T rush me, Cinderella. There's plenty of time. Before I shoot the works I've a few questions to ask you, so get comfortable and keep the old mind working."

Becky tucked an extra cushion behind her back, drew the blanket more closely about her and allowed her eyelids to droop. "I'm listening. Give me a smoke and go on."

Scarlett lighted a cigarette, handed it to her, and, watching her with narrowed eyes while he thought: "By heaven she is a beauty," said aloud "First of all—You're through with this fellow Estabrook, that's over?"

"I wouldn't say I was altogether through with him. But—"

"You're still crazy about him, then?"

"No. No! I've told you my days of being crazy about anyone are over. I'm the original heartless lady from now on." Becky took a deep breath, and went on with a little hesitation: "Still that doesn't say I won't let him pay for taking my heart. Does it now?"

"Now you're talking. That's my idea exactly." Scarlett leaned back and studied the tips of his boots. "I had it in for you tonight, Becky. You broke up a little affair that would have put me right on easy street for life, and I didn't intend to let you get away with it. I followed you from the theatre to that chop house. And I followed you all over the city until you decided to go in for a private diving contest. I'll admit I thought a sound thrashing would bring you to your senses, but it appears that a cold bath has turned the trick without my interference. So, we'll call bygones bygones, providing you'll lend me a hand now?"

"In . . . what? What's the crazy bird got up his sleeve now?"

"Something that'll pay well enough, and square us both with Estabrook."

Becky's heart began to throb. She told herself that it was excitement, anger, even triumph. But it hurt.

"What do you need me for it for?" she asked in a low voice.

"Those little matters are best handled by a lady."

"Like, for instance, Violet Davenport."

Scarlett started. "You aren't such a fool as I've thought you, Becky McCloskey. So you know about Violet Davenport? Well, Violet's half way out to the county now, and you'll serve the turn better'n she would."

"What turn, brother? You may not know it, but you're talking Greek as far as I know what it's all about."

"Play dumb, if you want to. I suppose you overlooked the joker in my hand when you cleared out with Nan Estabrook in tow. Didn't remember I had her letters, did you?"

"No . . . No . . . I forgot those letters."

"Good thing you did, too. Nan's been scared into keeping her mouth shut, Her brother has been hypnotized with fright. Now, being a wise young lady, you can see just what a sorry mess those letters would make for the future Lady Travers and her family if they didn't get to fat Cissie. My plan for this. You see Nan . . . it'll be easy for you, whereas I could barge in and put the proposition up to her squarely. And we'll split the profits . . . well . . . just to show you I mean business, we'll say fifty fifty."

During this exposition Becky's fingers had grown gradually more and more closely clenched until now, with a shock, she felt the nails biting into her palms.

Scarlett, attributing her silence to reflection, asked pleasantly, "Well, what do you say?"

"I say no. Absolutely and definitely no."

"Oh, you make me laugh. Do I act as though my life meant so much that any threat of yours could worry me? . You're the one who needs to wake up." Becky paused, gnawing at her underlip. "Dan, listen," she was pleading with him now. "Don't do this thing I don't want to see you behind bars." She went on, coaxing and threatening. Scarlett was not giving an inch. At last, "I have a plan of my own, Dan," she said. "There's fifty thousand in it—as a start, for you. If you give me those letters."

"What are you talking about?" Scarlett was attentive enough now. "Fifty thousand—where do you expect to get it?"

"I will get it—from Estabrook—

GOES BACK LIKE 'REAL FARMER'

Atlanta, Oct. 20 (I.N.S.).—The make-up box of nature, with its glowing reds and hardy tans, will have removed from the face of Earl Carroll all traces of Broadway when he next sets foot in the roaring Forties.

Broadway should have seen Carroll at his Wednesday morning as he waited at the honor farm of the U. S. Penitentiary for word to arrive that his parole papers had reached "the big house" and he was to begin his journey back to freedom.

Broadway wouldn't have known him.

Broadway wouldn't even have suspected him. He was attired in a suit of denim that had seen hard usage. His shoes were large and thick and heavy and had signs of contact with the red clay soil of Georgia.

He wore a hickory shirt and a wool hat, stained by sun and rain and a bit frayed by the wind. His face was bronzed and his hands showed the wear and tear of work

On Vegetable Wagon

Had someone encountered him on a vegetable wagon headed for Atlanta he could have well been taken for some farmhand from the nearby hills who ventured a living from the shallow soil and got his dizziest amusement out of Wednesday night prayer meeting at a log church in an oak grove.

"I guess," said Warden Snook today, "that Carroll's in the best physical and mental shape he's been in since he was discharged from the army.

"In New York he didn't eat much more than enough to keep a canary alive. He was thin to emaciation, had no appetite and didn't sleep.

"He's been a sun dodger for a good many years. The life he had led and as much to do as his nervous collapse as his being sentenced.

Greets Rising Sun

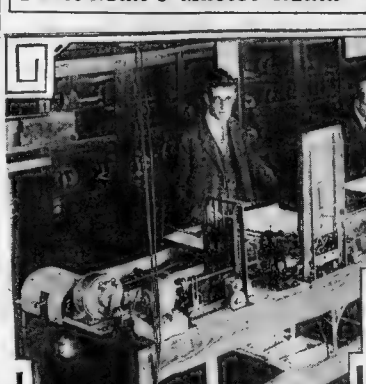
"He tells me that he hadn't been to bed before morning in years, and he usually got up by electric light. I guess he'd seen the sun rise pretty frequently, but I doubt if he'd seen it at its zenith in years.

"Well, since he's been here, he's gone to bed when the chickens went to roost and has greeted the rising sun. He has been a fixture at the honor farm, but he also has a practical knowledge of how to raise corn and cabbages and turnip greens and cow peas.

"He's as hard as nails and eats like a horse."

Carroll plans to leave Atlanta for home tonight.

Tech Man's 'Master Mind' Machine Out-thinks Men



A "SUPER-HUMAN BRAIN"

The "Product Integraph," an electrical machine that thinks for itself—and out-thinks humans—has been developed by Dr. Vannevar Bush, F. G. Kear, H. L. Hazen, H. R. Stewart and F. D. Gage of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. This "mechanical mind" solves mathematical problems too complex for the human brain to muster. Dr. Bush is seen at left in photo, observers at right watching the machine "do its miracles."

5 BATTLE DEATH FOR 3 DAYS ON SINKING SHIP

Portland, Me., Oct. 20 (A.P.)—Happy to be back on land again after a voyage fraught with danger, the crew of the three-masted schooner Flowerdow of St. John's, N. F., landed at State Pier today from the steamer Santa Veronica.

They were transferred to the steamer, bound here from Pacific ports, after being rescued 200 miles off Savannah, Ga., Friday, by the Italian steamer Brenta II.

For three days and nights, with their vessel settling beneath them, they labored at the pumps and when the pumps clogged they bailed with wooden buckets

Captain James Bellman of Grand Banks, N. F., calmly guided his craft toward the coast, even when she was in imminent danger of plunging to the bottom

With him were five young men from the same Newfoundland town, all born and brought up with the sea—James Watts, the mate; Orlow Drake, the cook, and three seamen, Wilson White, Arthur Slattery and Clifford Smith.

The schooner filled so rapidly that the top of the cargo was finally covered and the mate were dangerously close to the surface of the water.

By 5 p. m. of the third day the schooner was almost submerged and they were certain it would be but a short time before she would go to the bottom.

Friday morning they saw the first smudge of smoke on the horizon from the Brenta II and rescue followed.

FULLER IS COLD TO BOOM FOR DAWES' JOB

Governor Fuller declared today that he would rather retire to private life than be the Republican party's vice-presidential nominee next year

"I've had four strenuous years and my one wish is to retire and devote myself to my family, my home and my business," he said

This was in reply to dispatches from Washington stating that adherents of Herbert Hoover were planning to boom Governor Fuller as the former's running mate at the national convention in 1928.

BREWSTER "SOUNDS" HIM.

"Does your reply on this matter of the vice-presidency also apply to the presidential nomination, if it were tendered you?" he was asked by newspapermen.

The Governor pondered and replied: "Well, that's something I never gave any thought to."

Regarding the Hoover-and-Fuller proposal, he said

"Governor Brewster of Maine sounded me out on just such a line-up when he was here a few days ago. He wanted to know how I felt about his getting the New England governors behind such a slate. I told him it had no attraction for me

Actress Pays $12,500 for Passage on Junkers Plane

VIENNA, Oct. 20 (A.P.)—The cost of passage aboard the Junkers plane D-1230 for Lilli Dillens, Viennese actress, who is now in the Azores with the plane awaiting favorable weather for a hop across the Atlantic, was $12,500, it was disclosed today.

The money was paid to the promoters of the flight by Madame Dillenz, the fund being provided by a group of Austrian business men who are to share in her earnings from newspaper articles, films and other activities growing out of the flight. Before leaving Germany she insured her life for $50,000.

COUPLE ROBBED BY 3 THUGS

Kingston, Oct. 21.—Three thugs held up and robbed a man and his wife in Wapping road today.

Harold E. White and his wife of No. 19 Summer street were the victims They reported to the police they stopped their car in the belief that three men in the road were police. One of the trio pointed a gun at White, the second searched his pockets while the third stood watch over Mrs. White

The couple, according to the police, said the man with the gun wore a long light overcoat and a light cap and appeared to be the owner of the robbers' automobile

MIAMI RUSTLES FIRES WHILE N. E. SWEATS

Becket, Oct. 20.—A flowering quince, which usually blooms only in the early Spring, is in full bloom on the lawn of P. N McCormick in Main street Becket is a good old Massachusetts town.

San Francisco, Oct 20 (A.P.)—Summer lingered in the West today as various points from Canada to Mexico claimed to be in the throes of "heat waves"

Ashcum, in Southern California, took first prize with a maximum temperature registered 96

Harve, Mont., and Sheridan, Wyo which have reputations for experiencing some of the coldest weather in the country reported 88 and 84 respectively San Francisco had an 83 Maximum

Winnipeg, Man., reported the thermometer had registered well above 80 in Western Canada.

By one of the vagaries of New England weather, the storm which has been sweeping the Atlantic coast for three days jumped from Connecticut to Maine through the night, barely brushing Greater Boston in its passage.

INVENTION HIS OWN 'BRAINS'

An electrical machine which thinks for itself has been developed in the Department of Electrical Engineering of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Into this "mechanical mind" can be fed the conditions of a mathematical problem too complex for the human brain to master, and it will promptly grind out the answer and write it down, as efficiently as a machine takes in lumber and chemicals and produces finished boxes of matches.

The new machine, which is called the Product Integraph, opens the doors to important fields of research hitherto inaccessible, it was stated The Product Integraph was developed by Dr. Vannevar Bush, professor of electric power transmission, and a staff of workers, including F. G Kear, H. L. Hazen, H. R. Stewart and F. D. Gage.

Work of Years

The work was begun several years ago with the object of meeting the urgent need for a machine which would automatically solve the problems of advanced electrical theory rapidly and with a high degree of accuracy. A technical description of the instrument is to be published by the Franklin Institute.

"The Product Integraph," Dr. Bush explained, "might be called an adding machine carried to an extreme in its design. Where workers in the business world are ordinarily satisfied with addition, subtraction, multiplication and division of numbers, the engineer deals with curves and graphs which represent for him the past, present and future of the things in which he deals."

The Integraph, a device of electrical measurements, cams and recording tables, is virtually a mathematician in using the integraph, takes the equations which he is interested in and plots them on a paper.

These sheets are then passed slowly under pointers, and operators stationed along the length of the machine keep the pointers on the curves. As these pointers move up and down, the power flowing through the meter varies in proportion and the number of revolutions it makes during the operation is the integral, or sum which is desired

Instead of moving hands over a dial, the meter controls a motor through a relay and the motor is made to drive a pencil on another sheet of paper also moving slowly along. The result of all this is to trace on the sheet a curve which is called the integral and which is the result sought.

Controls a Motor

The machine does not stop at this, however, but by a second integrating device, somewhat different than the first, but performing the same operation, integrates the result a second time. This latter, it was stated, makes the machine even more valuable, since many electrical equations require but two integrations and thus can be handled directly on this machine.

Another device is a system of hook coupling whereby the curves which must be followed by the pointers depend upon the final result itself This is accomplished by driving the table upon which the plotted curves are fastened, by means of the same motor which drives the recording pencil.

The machine will solve practically any second order differential equation, which is a type of equation with which engineers have a great deal to do.

WIDOW, 65, LOVES AND LOSES

Greenfield, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—The romance of Mrs. Estella M. Woodward of South Deerfield, who at the age of 65 years was married a year ago to Herman Letourneau of Turners Falls, 22-year-old chauffeur, has been wrecked.

In the Probate Court today she was granted a divorce on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment

Under the decree she is at liberty to remarry after six months while Letourneau must wait two and one-half years before he can legally take another wife. She was given permission to resume the name of her former husband, Joel Woodward.

Letourneau left home not long after the marriage. After a few weeks' absence he returned, but remained only a short time and since then he and his wife had not lived together.

DIEHL CASE IN HANDS OF JURY

At 12 30 today the case of John H. Diehl of Everett, former master of the steamer City of Rome, who has been on trial in Federal Court on indictments resulting from the sinking of the submarine S-51, was given to the jury.

Judge James M. Morton made a charge which lasted less than 40 minutes, after which the jury retired for its deliberations.

Captain Diehl was indicted for negligence and misconduct, and for failure to stand by and render reasonable assistance when the submarine went down with 27 lives.

2 MAY DIE FROM 'LIVE' NAIL

Two men, employed by the maintenance department of the Boston Elevated, were burnde today on the elevated structure in Keaney square, Nord End, while scores of horrified factory men and girls looked on.

The men, Nils Lindall, 23, of Rutland square, South End, and William Costello, 49, married, of Eastern avenue, Malden, drove a nail through a live cable. They were so badly burned that they may die.

Both men were taken to the Haymarket Relief Hospital.

Traffic on the elevated structure was delayed several minutes by the accident.

"PEEPER" FINED $100 ON ALIEN REVOLVER CHARGE

Responding to complaints from East Boston women that a "peeper" was at work in the vicinity of Princeton street, police searched the district and arrested Ishsei Wistro of Princeton street on the roof of a house. A revolver was found in his possession and he pleaded guilty in East Boston District Court to carrying a gun while an alien. He paid $100 fine.

TODAY'S WOMAN IS DEFENDED

Women of America are demonstrating every day that home and career are entirely compatible, Mrs Marguerite B Benson director of the women's bureau, National Association of Manufacturers, declared today in an address on "Women in Industry" at the annual meeting of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts at the Copley Plaza.

Before men prominent in the industrial life of Massachusetts and New England Mrs Benson argued against the belief that women are physically inferior and must be "protected against themselves" by man-made regulations limiting their participation in the industrial activities of the nation.

"Give us time and we will prove that we can be wage-earners without neglecting our job of reproducing the species," she declared.

The NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL . . . key to the World's Richest Market

"Destination— NEW YORK"

¶ The New York Evening Journal will carry your goods swiftly and surely to the heart of the New York market

THOUSANDS of freight trains roaring over a hundred lines, tens of thousands of freight cars piled high with costly cargoes, millions of tons of products collected from every corner of the country—a mighty stream of merchandise pours constantly into the New York market.

Night and day it flows, year in and year out, and the cry is always for more. For here, in the fifty-mile area surrounding Manhattan Island, is the richest, most populous trading area in the world—compact, seething with life, tapping the resources of an entire nation to satisfy its ever-increasing needs. Here, within shopping distance of the city, are 9,000,000 consumers—more than in all New England. Here is concentrated more wealth, more money and buying power than in seven large mid-western states combined!

From the merchandising point of view, the New York market is ideal selling territory. Salesmen see the maximum number of prospects with the minimum outlay of time and expense. Trade channels are scientifically worked out to avoid all lost motion and delay. Transportation is quick and cheap. Distribution is thoroughgoing and effective. There is no market in the world that offers the sales possibilities of this one—if you know how to get in.

The New York Evening Journal is the key to the New York market. Of all the people who read a New York evening newspaper, almost every other one buys the New York Evening Journal. Its circulation of 680,681—at three cents a copy!—is greater than those of the next two New York evening newspapers combined, plus 87,000. In point of influence, reader-interest and distribution, it is by far the greatest evening paper in the world!

The New York Evening Journal is essentially a family newspaper. It goes into the home, when the day's work is over, and it is read by the entire household. The advertisements which it contains influence one-third of the purchases made daily in the New York market! No other evening paper in existence can offer such coverage as this.

The best possible testimony to the powerful advertising appeal of the New York Evening Journal lies in its consistent use by the most successful merchandisers. The ability of the New York Evening Journal to sell goods has been proved time and again, beyond any possibility of doubt or question. Its circulation today is more than twice that of the next New York evening newspaper—plus 51,000!

Rightly approached, the New York district is the most profitable selling area in the country. A good product, properly and consistently advertised, will yield greater returns here than anywhere else. The signal is open; the line is clear. Let the New York Evening Journal carry your goods swiftly and surely to the heart of the New York market!

New York Evening Journal

New York City.

Gentlemen:

Three months ago almost to the day we started the Dona Castile Soap campaign in New York City with sixty salesmen working in crews. We have completed three coverages of all the potential outlets in the Metropolitan area. During all this time we received the benefit of the valuable experience gained in previous campaigns by your Merchandising Dept.

Measured either from a standpoint of the individuals or the staff as a whole, they have functioned for us in a way we have not experienced before and their assistance in routing men, compiling reports and furnishing us with accurate information which we could turn into sales, has contributed splendidly towards the success of the first phase of our campaign.

This merchandising work gave us the perfect tie-up to get the greatest benefit from the black and white and color advertising we ran in the Journal. The reproductions of the color pages were well distributed by our own crews and your men, and this, combined with our display material, has resulted in our getting much more than the average window display space given to a new product.

The writer wishes to personally express his sincere appreciation for the very real assistance rendered him in the last three months.

Very truly yours,

Fans Want Slattery. Speaker Through.
Jack Has Spark. Cobb et al, Also.
Knows Baseball. Braves Want Driver.

By NICK FLATLEY

FANS THINK SLATTERY WOULD HELP BRAVES

"WHY," queries E. F. W. of Brighton, "do not Boston writers do a little picking of a manager for the Braves? I have read a dozen New York stories in which everybody from Tris Speaker to Mayor Walker has been named.

"Every Boston fan knows that Jack Slattery would be a great man for any managing job, but the fans have nothing to say. They just keep on supporting losing teams. A campaign for Slattery, who knows baseball, and knows how to teach it, as his coaching and scouting records show, might do some good.

Nick Flatley

"We need someone here who would be on the job all day and all night. Someone with an incentive to hustle and try to build a team, not a high priced star, who would just be grabbing a big salary and a soft one.

"A local product, with a chance, should always have the preference, and the club will be making a mistake if it lets Slattery slip. Things have been so bad at Braves Field that one more flop will put the whole works in the discard.

"Bob Quinn made a hit when he signed Carrigan, who is local, and a real baseball man. The Braves can follow suit. The club has good enough material to do much better than it has in the past three years. Some high priced manager will not develop, just ask for money for stars, or sit back and shrug his shoulders and ask what he can do about it. We all know there's lots of that spirit in big league baseball.

"Slattery would hustle, and knows what it's all about. And the gang would be for him. Why don't you writers do something?"

We might inform E. F. W. that writers and campaigns have little to do with the appointment of managers. Club officials pick 'em out before they let the old birds go. But our correspondent produces a line of argument that is very popular with Boston fans at the present writing. A hustler is needed for that job, and no question about it. The team has quite a bit of class, which only driving, hard-boiled methods can bring out. The B. C. coach has the stuff, as we see it, and the club couldn't possibly find a better man.

EVERY BASEBALL MAN THINKS HE'S A MANAGER, UNTIL HE TRIES IT. NOT ONE IN A THOUSAND CLICK.

I never played on a big team
Or tried to make one go;
But I could manage anything,
Oh boy, for all that dough.

AMERICAN LEAGUE ABOUT TO RELEASE SPEAKER

JUDGE FUCHS, president of the Braves, is in town just now conferring on the managerial proposition with his partner, Charles F. Adams. The pair have reached a decision, we imagine, and will announce their choice within a week or so.

"We realize," the Judge said to your correspondent, "that we must get the right type of man to build up this club. We have been considering several, and are sure that the one we settle on will be on the job and give us a real team."

Tris Speaker has been consistently boomed in all corners of the country. That's just propaganda. Tris is going to get the air in the American League this Winter, according to all signs, and naturally would like to get himself signed to a job before the news in spread about.

It's a great life if you have a fat pocketbook, and don't care where the checks go. Clark Griffith, about to release Speaker, wouldn't mind picking up $50,000 for services that would not bring a half or third of that in a couple of months.

Headmasters in Favor of New Sport Stadium

By JOE CASHMAN

The headmasters of Boston's intown high schools say that a field for the athletes in these schools is needed and the majority of them are loud in their praise of the Boston Evening American's campaign for a municipal stadium.

The Mayor, members of the City Council, the directors of physical training in the schools and, now, the headmasters of four of the largest high schools in the Hub endorse the Boston Evening American's suggestion that an up-to-date athletic plant be built as near as possible to the intown schools . . . . . .

No longer should there remain any doubt in anybody's mind as to the necessity of a municipal stadium and the purpose it is to be put to after the structure is built.

Nine out of ten persons to whom we have talked on the subject are enthusiastic over the proposition, and the other one is undecided because he has not given the matter any thought.

Opinions of the headmasters of some of the high schools are given below. Some of them have definite plans for the stadium, while others are undecided as to what purpose it should be put to after the football season is over.

The important point, though, is that the big majority recognize the need of some sort of field either small or large. That is all that concerns the Boston Evening American.

Let those who have authority in such matters decide whether the stadium should be built in the Fenway or South Boston. Then erect. Councilor Hurd of Roxbury has asked the city to spend $250,000 for the work.

This sum, or a little more or less, will not be expensive. Those who favor a stadium do not favor spending a huge sum of money. All that should be done at first is to build a field and then it would be time enough to spend millions of dollars for the last word in stadiums.

HEADMASTER DOWNEY IN LINE

[illegible] Headmaster of [illegible] High School, is one of those who favor a stadium. He says:

"Great stuff," said the principal of the Montgomery street school when questioned as to his views on the drive for the field.

"I have long wished that such a field were available," went on Mr. Downey, "and often thought what a fine site the Fenway playground, along Audubon road, would be for one.

"Since I became [illegible] the High School of Commerce [illegible] I have [illegible] that [illegible] would be [illegible].

"There is no doubt but that the proposed stadium is needed, and I would like to see one erected. I would be better pleased if two fields were built.

"I think that the district schools are almost as badly in need of a first-class athletic field as the intown schools. Two big fields in the Fenway would please me immensely.

BUCKY HARRIS PROUD FATHER OF BABY BOY

Washington, Oct. 19 (NEA Service)—Washington baseball fans have a new mascot today. He is Stanley Harris Jr., 6 pounds 11½ ounces, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Harris. Harris is Washington's manager.

"For one thing it would increase interest in athletics among the students. As great increase is necessary for the interest is very high at present, but, according to my way of thinking, it cannot be too great.

"Another thing in favor of the proposed stadium is that it would give the local schools an opportunity of bringing strong Saturday rivals to the Hub for games. That is impossible under existing conditions.

[illegible]

HEADMASTER CAMPBELL IN FAVOR

Any kind of a stadium, anywhere, as long as it can be reached by the school children in a short time, is the object of the Boston Evening American's campaign.

The headmasters of the intown schools, all of whom are well acquainted with existing conditions favor the Boston Evening American's plan for a municipal stadium.

"It would be one of the best things that could happen for Boston school children," said Headmaster Patrick Campbell of Boston Latin School.

"There is much to be said in favor of such a stadium and no objection to be made against it," continued the Latin School head.

Donaghy Will Play in Crimson Backfield

Harvard football physicians announced today that Guy Holbrook of Newton, who was being groomed to sub for Dave Guarnaccia in the Harvard backfield against Dartmouth Saturday, would not be able to play for two weeks. Everett Donaghy will complete the Crimson ball carrying quartet.

[illegible] a sudden shift in the plans of the Harvard coaches. The Newton lad was regarded as No. 2 back of a starting backfield of Arthur Dresser, Joe Crosby, Wallace Harper and Holbrook.

Donaghy, while not an clever [illegible] career as Holbrook, is a far better passer and ranks only second to Arthur French as a punt kicker.

The insertion of Donaghy into the starting backfield may mean that Harvard will resort to a passing game on Saturday. Donaghy has been used as a receiver of several passes and forward heaves all season and Stadium fans can expect the Dresser-to-Donaghy pass to play an important part in the coming game.

A bit of sunshine was found in the situation this morning when Doctor Richards issued a report that Dave Guarnaccia could be used on Saturday. Guarnaccia will serve in the relief role.

ARGONNE BATTLERS ARE READY

Merry Bunch of Punch Flingers Set for Friday's Big Fighting Show

THE merry band of punch flingers who will appear in the Argonne A.A.'s show at Mechanics Building tomorrow night have knocked off work. They will merely graze at the local scenery and take things easy until they step to bat in the merry battle to climb the pugilistic ladder that leads to the Hall of Fame.

The Okum of New York, a member of Jimmy Johnston's outfit of boxers, will probably step to the post a slight favorite over Jack Conway of Elizabeth, N. J., heavyweight, in their ten-round scramble. Okum is a fine boxer and has had more ring experience than the heavy thinks entire school. This is why he is expected to win the semi-final money when he steps into action.

Schaaf has been training at Wentworth and is prepared to give everything he has in the big bout.

Jack Conway

I look for Mickey Sears of East Boston to be named favorites in his fight with Sid Richarian of Detroit. Sears has come to the front in a rapid clip and will not find it difficult to hit Richarian. Even matched as a piece of granite, as he proved in his contests with Jim Maypole, but it isn't difficult to get a clean poke at him.

THE preliminary card will consist of five four-rounders. These kind of bouts are proving as popular here as they did in Cadet Hall. Many times little stalling and the boys usually come through with a flock of action.

The four-rounders shape up as follows: Tommy Murphy, Somerville, vs. Art Ryan, Kerry Village; Joe Harriett, Halifax, vs. Cannon ball Cote, West End; Eddie Callahan, formerly known as Cyclone DeRosiers, Nashua, N. H., vs. Young Mullins, South Boston; Danny Sears, East Boston, vs. Spike Hennessey, Wrentham, and Eddie J. Kirson, Quincy, vs. Steve McGrath, Cambridge.

MATCHMAKER TOM GOODWIN of the Enfield A. A., is making an effort to rematch Jackie Donahue, South Boston featherweight, and Johnny Shepard of Woburn, who staged such a sensational battle at the Arena on Monday night. The decision went to Shepard, but in the opinion of most of the fans the award belonged to Donahue.

On long range boxing, Donahue had the advantage. Shepard, though, held the nucleus of infighting, he also carried the battle to his younger opponent. A return bout between these two boys would go a long ways towards clearing up the wrangle over which is the better man.

IF Donahue and Shepard are matched it will be the semi-final to the ten-round tussle between Sammy Fuller, colorful North End lightweight, and Chick Suggs of New Bedford, which will be staged at the new Fenton arena a week from Monday night.

Fuller has been training for a couple of weeks and says he will be close to 128 pounds when he starts tossing punches at Suggs. It will be the first meeting between these boys. Each has a victory to his credit and the mulling in the Fuller battle should be spirited.

LOU BOGASH has started light training. The veteran will be back in the spotlight when he battles in the semi-final to Jack Sharkey-Heeney match at Madison Square Garden on November 15.

MEDFORD TO PLAY AT EVERETT

Faculty Manager Kendall's Decision to Follow Schedule Good News to Fans

By JOE CASHMAN

The annual Medford-Everett game will be played at Everett a week from Saturday, as originally scheduled.

The announcement of Headmaster Thornton Jenkins of Malden High that he will not permit the Malden team to play in Everett on November 12 because of the poor condition and small seating capacity of the field, caused many schoolboy fans to fear that Medford, too, would refuse to perform there.

Faculty Manager Kendall of Medford announced today, however, that Medford would play at Everett on October 29.

This is good news. Medford and Everett probably are two of the greatest school elevens in the State this season and everybody wants to see the famous Suburban rivals settle the question of gridiron supremacy.

The Everett school committee couldn't see its way clear to permit Coach Gildea's eleven to play Medford and Malden away from home as was suggested, because ice prevent Everett field doesn't seat 5,000 fans and at least three times that number would like to see the game with Medford and Malden.

It was proposed to the Everett authorities that the games with Medford be played at the Malden stadium on Conch Batchelde, a court is scheduled to play at Manchester, N. H., on that day and that the contest in Malden be staged at Fulton street grounds, Medford, since Coach Beck's boys have an engagement in Waltham on that afternoon.

Under this plan, both games would be played on neutral fields, both much larger and in better condition than the Everett park, but the Everett School Committee ruled that the games would have to be played at home or not at all.

The decision of Malden not to play at Everett may result in these two schools severing athletic relations. Malden is no longer a member of the Suburban League and is under no obligation to book Everett next season.

Being in possession of tickets to the Harvard-Dartmouth game on Saturday, the Cambridge Latin and Somerville High players will stage their Suburban League clash at Russell Field, North Cambridge, tomorrow afternoon instead of the next day. Can you blame them?

Once they had procured the coveted pasteboards admitting to the stadium clash, the lads began blending with their respective coaches, Leader McDonald of Cambridge Latin and Charlie Dickerman of Somerville, for Saturday afternoon off. Both coaches being regular fellows and understanding the mind and desires of youth, they at once agreed to put the game on tomorrow.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

TING-A-LING! Ting-a-ling!

Mr. Boston picked up the receiver of the telephone in the sporting department.

"This is ol' Sam Langford," came the voice over the wire

"Hello, there, Sam," said Mr. Boston

"I want to know," went on the famous Tar Baby, "how they came to calling this here Roy Mitchell another Sam Langford."

"Must be because he took a boat ride to town from Halifax," replied Mr. Boston laughingly.

"Gee whittaker (substituted for stronger remark which was keyed by client desk censor) if that fellow Mitchell is another Langford I want to be put into a cage

"I went up to the Arena the other night to look Mitchell over. As everyone is pretty nearly all gone but Mitchell was so rotten that I could tell. I said my ain't got anything. I only wish fellows like Hilbert were around when I was fighting. I wouldn't have asked for anything easier than either Mitchell or Ravera. I would gladly have taken on a couple of those bubbles on the same night."

"It seems," piped up Mr. Boston, "that most people who saw Mitchell agree with you."

"Remember me to Joe Woodman the next time you bump into him in New York," said Langford as he hung up.

"I guess there was only one Langford," resumed Mr. Boston as he turned to the gang in the sporting department.

"OL' SAM could hit. When he let the big punch breeze, the other fellow was half way to his dressing room.

"Punchers like Langford always have an appeal. This explains the remarkable popularity of Hambone Kelly of South Boston. He is a real socker.

"Give Hambone a few wins and he'll crowd any fight club to capacity. Matchmaker Tom Goodwin tells me Hambone is in the best condition of his career. After years spent in careless living, Hambone has finally settled down. He's training daily and wants to go out and make enough money during the next few years to insure himself an easy living in his old age.

"The trouble with Hambone in many of his battles has been the lack of condition. He would tire after three or four rounds. But while he is in there he gave action. If Hambone will train properly, he will be able to travel the full route at top speed. Then what a ring menace he'd be.

"Paul Berlenbach once told me that Hambone hit him harder than he was ever smacked in his life when they collided at Braves Field a couple of years ago. Hambone, Berlenbach said, would have stopped him if it had not been for his lack of condition.

"TOM GOODWIN says he will have the mighty slugger on the same card with Fuller and Suggs. The Suffolk Club matchmaker will probably leave for New York in a day or so to find an opponent who will be able to make Kelly step along

"Hambone was in the best condition of his life at the Arena the other night," said Goodwin. 'I think he could have knocked out any man of his weight in the world. He sure did wreck Irish Dan Cronin.'

"Cronin wasn't anxious to fight Hambone.

"'How good is this Kelly?' Dan asked his advisers.

"'Just a bum,' they replied.

"After the bout, Cronin said:

"'Get me star battlers as opponents in the future. I don't want any more bums if they are all like Hambone.'"

N.E. BOYS HAVE CALL ON GREEN ELEVEN

tain Bob McPhail, Hal Hamm, A. Marsters and Myles Lane, an All-Middlesex County combination. Captain McPhail, Hal Hamm and Al Marsters are citizens of Arlington while Myles Lane calls Melrose his home.

McPhail started his football career while a student at Somerville High, where he starred on the gridiron. After graduating from high school, McPhail journeyed to Exeter for a couple of years and then decided that the north end toy was to his liking, so he came to Dartmouth.

He was the fullback on his fresh man team but upon becoming all eible for varsity football, McPhail was converted into a quarterback.

The shift did not meet with Mc Phail's approval, at first, but nevertheless, he put his shoulder to the wheel and long before Dartmouth had gone through undefeated in 1925, the critics throughout the country were singing the praises of the present Dartmouth leader.

In spite of the fact that it was the unanimous opinion of everyone that McPhail had gone through the 1925 season without making a mistake in the use of plays, the return of Ellis Ducey caused the Alumni boss to be side tracked as a quarterback.

He was used as a fullback with Myles Lane as his running mate. Eddie Dooley was hailed as the saviour of the Green, but such was far from the truth, and the return of "Dusty" Dooley threw the Green machine out of gear.

McPHAIL'S RARE JUDGMENT.

McPhail is back at quarter and once more Dartmouth has the advantage of a brainy field general. McPhail has played a great deal of football since the day he reported to "Butch" Ayer at Somerville High School and there is no doubt the Green leader understands anything but the best judgment against the Crimson.

Tho there is Buck Black, a Pekin Ill. boy, and the regular fullback gives Hamm an opportunity to start against Harvard. Hamm came here from Exeter with Al Marsters and this pair starred on the 1924 team of that school.

Hamm is not the equal of Black as a kicker or passer, but is a valuable man to have banging around. Hamm is a great No 1 back and his clearing out was responsible for many of the wonderful runs Marsters got away with last year, and he has been just as effective this season.

Hamm does not need to take hard water from anyone, when it comes to barking up the line. He is on a par with Larry Lewis and "Hooker" Horton when it comes to smacking them down on the line of scrimmage.

WATCH MYLES LANE GO!

Much has been said and written regarding Lane and Marsters and they are deserving of such honors. Lane is the leading scorer of the Green and will be a marked man in the Harvard game.

But marked or otherwise, the Melrose boy is sure to turn in another stellar performance. Marsters is a sophomore, but he has been a sensation this season. He is exceptionally fast and shifts and just loves it.

The City of Quincy will be watching the work of their fellow townsman, Gordon Locke, as he will play down the right end berth for the Green.

Locke is the most improved player on the Dartmouth squad and would teamed with Jack Meaney and Coach Hawley a pair of wingmen equal to the great Bo Metty and the cagey Helm Shay, of the championship 1925 eleven.

The other Green backs are New Enclande a lanky lad from Manchester, N. H., and El Armstrong from New Haven. Only Armstrong have seen action in games of the Yale Bowl, but Captain Tommy Thompson the handy leader to select Dartmouth fullback to play Yale.

Kilpela, the center, is from Nashua, N. H., and despite his lack of weight is a serviceable player capable of giving and receiving more punishment than the average two hundred pounder.

Inside Golf

By Chester Horton

The entire action with the golf club is as nearly as you can make it straight back and forth on a line passing through the ball and toward the hole ahead. To the observer it appears that the swing is around and in back of the player, and actually that is what happens. But when the player goes about it intentionally to work the club in back of him self he gets it too much back there. His left arm then reaches out and away from the body in the back swing. Instead of keeping close, and as a result the club comes down outside the line, cuts across the ball and delivers a slice. Imagine a straight line and keep the action parallel with the line. Better results will follow.

Right Diet Is Most Important—Too Much Milk Banned for His Charges —Pork and Veal Forbidden

By MAJOR FRANK W. CAVANAUGH

Head Football Coach at Fordham University

Former Head Coach at Boston College.

(Copyright, 1927, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

THE most striking feature of the subject of a diet for football players, is the way it is overdone. Anybody living the life that a man leads during the football season, ought, in the absence of some organic trouble, to be able to digest most anything. Now and then you will find on a squad, some fellow who has stomach trouble of one sort or another and special food will have to be given to him.

The chief thing a coach or trainer must remember in the arranging of the menu is that players should not be constantly reminded through their food that they are in training. A team, during its playing season, has a tendency towards feeling that they are not ordinary men or boys, but prisoners in strict confinement.

To the sensitive player, [illegible] thought is very wearing and a coach will do well to take steps to overcome it. I have found that an apparently carelessly planned menu will do much to put a man at his ease while eating, and afford him that many relaxation anyway.

Roast beef as to the amount of food will be found more necessary than we to the kind to give foods should be avoided and, for choice, most [illegible] will be cut out. Pork and veal are also on my list of forbidden foods.

Hot seasoned foods in large quantities are bad for anybody, and especially for those taking heavy exercise, so they, too, come under my ban. Lastly, I see that my men do not get none in too great quantities.

NINE out of ten medical men disagree with me on this last but I found out that the [illegible] of last year lived until they [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] years ago a rather brilliant team on my squad said to me toward the [illegible] of the season:

"Don't worry me, Coach, I'm going to [illegible] and I'm going to start in right after the game."

After a fruitless meeting then I sent for the player and he went over his diet and habits—all of which were harmless enough. About to give up inquiry along that line, I asked him about milk and he said, "Oh, yes, I know it's good for me and I drink lots of it."

I had him cut this out and in four or five days a marked improvement was noticeable. Since this first encounter, I have had a number of cases of a similar sort.

THE most important meal of the week to the team is the one before Saturday's game. The [illegible] game meal would be one said I never [illegible] to each particular individual. Two [illegible] large a body as a [illegible] [illegible] that is, of course, [illegible] [illegible] so the next best thing is done. A [illegible] meal, safe for [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

New Ways in Which to Cook Ham

By MARTHA LEE

MEAT—the all important protein food—seems to be in greater demand than ever these cool days—when the homemaker is faced with the question of supplying attractive meat dishes for her family at a minimum of expense.

Left-over or warmed-up meats, un less carefully prepared, often fail to carry any great appetite appeal Perhaps I should have said most meats, for I think we'll all agree that left-over ham is quite as delicious cold as it is hot and equally attractive in the form of a ham loaf as if is as ham steak cooked in ginger ale.

For a family of four or five the purchase of a whole ham is truly economy—and r gnt now ham is very reasonable. Your grocer o. be glad to cut the whole ham into three parts—the butt or rounded end, which may be used for boiling or braising—the centre section, from which you can cut attractive thin or thick slices for broiling, frying or baking, and the shank end, which combines so well with cabbage, spinach and other Winter vegetables

Ham steak cooked in ginger ale has won a great many favorable comments and I know that if you try it your family will wax enthusiastic.

Ham Steak Cooked in Ginger Ale

—Place a one-inch slice of ham in a large casserole Cover with a dressing made by mixing one cup Brand Crumbs with one teaspoon parsley and one one-fourth cup butter. Dot with 6 cloves. If you wish, one-fourth of a green pepper may be chopped and added to the dressing. Pour a bottle of ginger ale in the bottom of the casserole.

Cover the casserole and bake in a 375 degrees F. over for 45 minutes. Then remove the cover, increase the temperature to 450 degrees F. and brown the dressing. Serve in the casserole on a large platter with ginger ale sauce.

Planked Ham Steak—Pan broil a thick slice of ham until done—about 20 minutes. Then place it on a greased, heated plank or oven glass plates. With a pastry tube or paper cornucopia make nests of mashed potatoes around the steak. In alternate nests, place asparagus tips in green pepper rings and diced carrots.

In between the nests place small molds of spinach. Brush the potatoes and carrots with melted butter. Place in the oven for a few minutes to reheat, then serve. This makes an especially attractive party dish for the serving of 4 to 6 portions.

The left-over bits from the ham butt that has been boiled or baked, and the ham shank, may be used for the following dishes:

Hot Ham Sandwich—Cut bread as for sandwiches, using brown, gluten, whole wheat or graham bread. Spread one piece with butter and the other with finely chopped ham. Press the buttered piece onto the ham and dip in slightly beaten egg. Fry a golden brown in hot fat.

Ham and Corn Fritters—One cup minced cooked ham, 1 can corn, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika 2 eggs.

Chop corn, drain and add dry ingredients mixed and sifted, then add ham and yoke of eggs, beaten until thick, and whites of eggs, beaten stiff Cook in a frying pan in fresh hot lard Drain on paper.

Faithfully your,
MARTHA LEE.

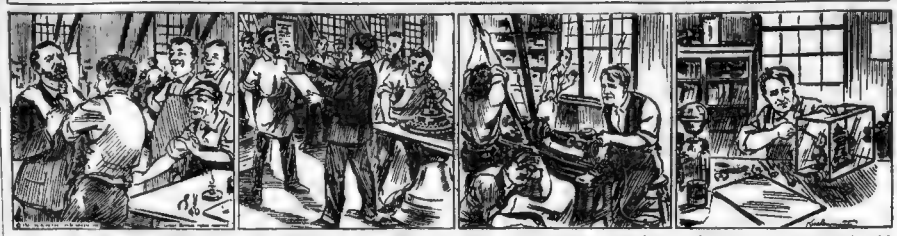
LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



In his search for a better filament for his incandescent lamp Edison tried every fibrous material he could think of. He even carbonized hairs from the red beard of Mackenzie, the station agent whose child he had saved when a boy. Mackenzie's laugh was the loudest when these carbons showed strong suburn rays.

When Edison was a manufacturer of stock tickers based on his patents he received an order for a quantity of tickers for early delivery. A defect in the ticker developed. Edison immediately stopped production, locked the doors and announced, "We'll stay here until the defect is corrected" The workers stayed.

On a Monday in 1896 an electrical exposition in New York opened. Edison exhibited an X-ray machine. Its prior Saturday afternoon, Saturday night and all day Sunday, there b ing no power, he and his assistants operated by hand a power-lathe to rewind the inductio coil, which had become short-circuited.

In Edison's philosophy the past is useful only i its service to the future. Some years ago models of Edison inventions were preserved in glass cases at his laboratories Occasionally he would take various parts for use in new models.

ON "PLAYING ON MEN"

Women USED to think
That to MARRY a
WIDOWER was NOT so good.
It was like playing
SECOND FIDDLE,
And they would have
PREFERRED to have been
His FIRST. Girls NOW are WISER. And MANY prefer

A man who has been Married ONCE or TWICE before, because
They KNOW he will
NOT expect so MUCH
From THEM.
And another thing,
WOMEN, these days, have CEASED to think of Themselves
As exquisitely FRAIL
INSTRUMENTS on which
MEN have a RIGHT to Play, strum or improvise.
Instead, they see
Themselves as the PLAYER
And MAN as an instrument
Just FULL of good
Looking NOTES
And men who have been Married ONCE know that
If they WANT harmony
They must PAY for it.

CORRECT MANNERS

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. When eating a food cocktail, soup or dessert, should the spoon be rested in the cup containing the food or on the flat plate used as an underlining?

2. When there is no underlining plate and the sherbet cup is set directly on the table, is it then proper to leave the spoon in the cup?

MELIS.

REST the spoon on the plate underneath.

2. Yes, then there is no alternative.

Does the bridegroom kiss the bride after its ceremony?

A READER

AT a church ceremony he usually does not and at a home wedding he usually does. And it seems consistent. However, if a sentiment impels him to kiss a bride, he may, of course, especially if he does not think that he will look as inward as most grooms do who stamp this before many spectators

GENERAL ELECTRIC
Refrigerator

Lots of space to store food—that's what you want in an electric refrigerator. The smallest model of the General Electric Refrigerators has the unusually large shelf area of nine square feet. Special designing of the shelves and the freezing chamber has accomplished this.

There isn't a single belt, fan, drainpipe or stuffing box in the General Electric Refrigerator. There's nothing to get out of order. There isn't an exposed moving part. All the mechanism, built with General Electric skill and tested in the General Electric laboratories, is hermetically sealed in a single steel casing. A permanent supply of special oil is enclosed. This absolutely eliminates the task of oiling for all time.

You are cordially invited to come in and see the refrigerators. Ask as many questions as you wish. Look in, under and behind them. And meanwhile, if you wish, the coupon below will bring you an illustrated booklet which tells more about these remarkable refrigerators.

The LIFE and LETTERS of WOODROW WILSON

RAY STANNARD BAKER.

Forbidden to Use Pen After Severe Attack of Neuritis

WILSON watched keenly the appearance upon the national stage of a new leader—the "Boy Orator of the Platte"—no other than William Jennings Bryan, in 1896. He looked out at him from an immense distance both physically and intellectually—he looked critically, with sharp disfavor. He was against him, against what he stood for.

"We might have had Mr. Bryan for President," he could say in July, 1897, "because of the impression which may be made upon an excited assembly by a good voice and a few ringing sentences flung forth just after a cold man who gave unpalatable counsel has sat down. The country knew absolutely nothing about Mr. Bryan before his nomination and it would not have known anything about him afterward had he not chosen to make speeches."

On the other hand, McKinley, elected in 1896, represented most of the ideas he abhorred, especially the protective tariff. He considered that McKinley was merely the figurehead for powerful forces operating behind him.

"Nobody supposes, I take it," he said in an address on August 4, 1897, "that Mr McKinley was ever the real leader of the Republican party. He did not even play a really constructive part in the framing of the celebrated tariff law which we call by his name; but the country thought that he did and rejected what they deemed his handiwork in the most emphatic manner, by name and title.

"Whatever personal admiration Mr. McKinley may have excited by reason of the sincerity, simplicity and directness of his character, he was clearly dwarfed in all matters of party choice by Mr. Reed and Mr Lodge and the real leaders of the Republican ranks."

All these things contributed to his unrest, the sense of his own futility. There was no constructive thinking, no real leadership, when the country was desperately in need of it! He himself could not take part except with talk! He had been powerfully moved all his life with the desire to serve and influence the nation politically, only to find himself, when the need was great set, with no audience, no power He was only a "literary politician."

Wilson's Power as Thinker Is Well Exemplified

Wilson's power as a thinker is nowhere better exemplified than in his stand upon educational problems. Many men of that quarter-century had been thinking deeply upon the same subjects. Two of them—Eliot, of Harvard, and Wilson, of Princeton—came to absolute parity in their views, and while largely different in their approach and their conclusions both rose to emerge as educational leaders and both were able to reconstruct important institutions.

It is interesting that these two men so different in many ways, were friends during all of the great years of their lives: they had a profound respect for each other.

We find him during the years 1895 and 1896 writing with a kind of ferocity of purpose, but only to produce the essays and political articles he loved to do, but to help add to his income and pay for the new home he was building. We find him toiling over his "George Washington," and breaking under the strain of it. In the fall of 1896 he was positively ill.

"My illness went deeper than I supposed," he wrote to Howard Pyle, "and has held me in its grip until now. I am still weak, but expect to get to work on the second paper again almost immediately."

"I am having very ill luck," he told H. M Alden. "I have been on my back again with a sharp attack of indigestion, which has delayed the map and everything else"

Before the close of the college year in 1896 he was unable to work at all. He could not use his right hand. It was called "writer's cramp"; in reality it was a severe case of neuritis. The doctors told him he must stop writing and take a long rest.

On May 30, 1896, he sailed for Europe. An account of this interesting trip, his first abroad, will be given elsewhere. He began immediately, since he could not use his right arm or hand, to practice with his left, and we find scores of neces or intimate letters painfully and yet beautifully written with his left hand.

Faced His Difficulties With Indomitable Patience

Here, as always in later times, he faced his own difficulties and limitations, his physical weakness, with a kind of indomitable patience His mind always rose above them, he allowed no failure to daunt him. Some of his friends who never knew of this handicap—and he was reticent always about such matters—felt aggrieved because he seemed to neglect them.

"For almost a year now I have been suffering with neuritis in my right arm," he wrote to Dr. A. Alexander. "For months I was forbidden to use the pen at all and laboriously practiced the use of my left hand. I am a great deal better now; but it is still unwise to write more than a few lines."

His Summer abroad gave him time and perspective to consider his problems and he came back to Princeton restored in health and steadied in mind. But those who were close to him, like Stockton Axson, saw that a change had come over him. He appeared more serious, more determined. Mr. Axson says:

"He had always been a purposeful man, but now se was a man of fixed and resolute purpose . . . He grew more and more impatient of merely theoretical discussions, he must handle facts in all their difficult reality."

On October 21, 1896, Wilson delivered his great address at the Princeton sesquicentennial celebration. It was the occasion upon which the old name, College of New Jersey, gave place to the new name, Princeton University. It was significant of his prestige that Wilson should have been chosen to sound the keynote of the new birth.

The celebration was one of the most noteworthy and distinguished in the entire history of Princeton University Wilson's address came on the second day, with Alexander Hall crowded to its capacity. Governor John W. Griggs of New Jersey presided and the first speaker was Dr. Henry van Dyke, who "recited, with refinement and deep feeling," an academic ode, "The Builders."

When Professor Wilson rose to speak the members of the class of '79, who were seated together stood up to greet him, but their cheers were drowned in those of his whole assembly. The ovation was interrupted by applause at several points, particularly when the orator pleaded for sound and conservative government and an education that shall draw much of its life from the best and oldest literature. At its conclusion the cheering was general and long-continued

Wilson's address made a profound impression. We have a vivid glimpse of it, partial, as such things must be, in a letter written by Mrs. Wilson to Mary W. Hoyt a few days later.

"We are just through with our great celebration, you know, the grandest thing of the sort, every one says, that America has ever seen. It was the most brilliant, dazzling success from first to last. And such an ovation as Woodrow received! I never imagined any thing like it. And think of so delighting such an audience—the most distinguished, everyone says, that has ever been assembled in America—famous men from all parts of Europe, as for The Princeton men, some of them simply fell on his neck and wept for joy. They say that those who could not get at Woodrow were shaking each other's hands and congratulating each other in a perfect frenzy of delight that Princeton had so covered herself with glory before the visitors. And that, of course, is what makes it such a sweet triumph; it was not a selfish success; it all redounded to the honor of Princeton before the assembled academic world. How I wish you could have heard it, of course, you can read it later, but then he delivered it so superbly."

The influence of the address exceeded far outside of the college. It was published in full in "The Forum" for December, 1896, and there were liberal extracts in many other reviews, weeklies and newspapers, and much editorial comment

Wilson developed more completely the ideas he had so carefully thought out and expressed two years before. The foundation principle that education must not be merely to develop the individual but to serve the State is expressed in the very title of the address, "Princeton in the Nation's Service."

College instructors could "easily forget that they were training citizens as well as drilling pupils." Princeton must be "a school of duty," and duty must rest upon reflection. "There is nothing that gives such pith to public service as religion."

Develops the Ideas He Had Carefully Thought Out

In order to perform this service the university must know its own mind, must know where it is going—in short, must have unity and purpose. The colleges must not be overwhelmed by the crowding demands of the new scientific studies There must be a careful balance between the humanities, the sciences, history and political economy.

Wilson was later attacked as being hostile to science. Here is what he actually said

"I have no indictment against what science has done. I have only a warning to utter against the atmosphere which has stolen from laboratories into lecture rooms and into the general air of the world at large . . . Science has not changed the nature of society, has not made history a whit easier to understand. human nature a whit easier to reform. It has won for us a great liberty in the physical world, a liberty from superstitious fear and from disease, a freedom to use nature as a familiar servant; but it has not freed us from ourselves."

He then goes on to say specifically:

"We have not given science too big a place in our education; but we have made a perilous mistake in giving it too great a preponderance in method in every other branch of study."

He makes a strong plea for the "intimate study of the ancient classics" for "explicit instruction in history and in politics." "He is not a true man of the world who knows only the present fashions of it."

He closes his address with an eloquent description of his ideal of the university in modern life and asks the question: "Who shall show us the way to this place?"

There were those in the audience that day at Princeton who thought that he was, indeed, the man to "show us the way to this place."

From this time onward, for the next six years until he was elected President of Princeton, we find him thinking, writing, lecturing harder than ever, but with steadier discipline. We find him working to refreedom and independence. Mothers can never be entirely free. He has the responsibility of supporting his family. A wife is sometimes a veritable slave to the needs of her household. There is a price to be paid for everything worth while in life. And very often that price is restricted freedom. Yet we cheerfully pay the price of life's precious gifts, including the gift of love.

A wise, elderly friend of mine, an officer in a large corporation, happened to mention to me the other day while we were chatting, his secretary, in whom I also am interested.

"About three years ago," he went on, "I noticed she was becoming fond of a fine young man from another department

For a while all went well. Then, suddenly, the companionship came to an end. My secretary said nothing. But I noticed she came to work with red eyes as though from hours of sleepless grief and weeping.

"Knowing her as well as I do, I realize that her shortcoming is an overwhelming sense of pride and independence. In a tiff she probably sent away the young man who cared for her. Perhaps she told him she was through in such clear terms he had no choice but to accept her ultimatum.

"For awhile her former sweetheart seemed grave and depressed. But of late he has been going about with another young woman, and I re-lived, just this last week, on his vitation to their wedding."

It is a tragedy of young romance that so many girls—and young men also, for that matter—are inclined to be "quick on the trigger" when little tiffs and differences of opinion arise

cover the full control of his arm—"Spent the day in Philadelphia . . . afternoon with he manager . . having my arm massaged . . . laid up a system of exercises, learning not to work so long at a time—in short, acquiring that self-mastery that was the keynote of his career

In the larger world of affairs he was beginning to "discover America," as we shall see later, by making longer lecturing trips; he was becoming surer and more vigorous in expressing his views upon public affairs.

He is more and more called upon for semi-public orations and is beginning to make a real impression upon men who count. After his address at the Sesquicentennial we find a letter from Theodore Roosevelt, then Governor of New York

"Just a line to say how delighted I was with your address last night; it was admirable in every way."

But the main currents in the nation seemed all to be getting away from the things he most ardently desired. McKinley had defeated Cleveland in 1897 the Republicans were in full control of the country, The Democratic party was hopelessly disorganized, with a dominant leadership—the Bryan element—which Wilson considered hopeless.

Wilson as the new president of Princeton University will be the subject tomorrow The chapter will include the story of his home life and family customs. Though a ridiculous worrier, Wilson found time for play. He rides his bicycle—and takes up golf, but without great enthusiasm.

Rinso makes washday so easy. I just soak the whole wash in its safe, creamy, sterilizing suds—and I haven't a bit of hard rubbing to do!

Dirt and stains float off in the rinsing. Even the most soiled parts need only a gentle rub between the fingers.

Of course this gentle way saves the clothes. Saves me fuel and fuss, too; for Rinso sterilizes without boiling.

Why don't you try Rinso next washday! See for yourself how soft and sudsy it makes the water.

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

To fry FISH
without smoke or odor

1 Put Crisco into cold frying pan. To thoroughly cook the food (for example, a fish) without smoke or scorching, fry slowly, using enough Crisco to partly cover it. It will not remain the constant attention frying does when only a little fat is used.

2 Put frying pan over low heat. As soon as Crisco is melted put in a small piece of bread. As soon as bread starts to brown put in the fish.

3 Cook slowly until fish is nearly done, then turn to brown the other side. With plenty of Crisco in the pan the fish is easily turned without breaking, if you wait until it is almost done.

4 Strain the Crisco into an empty can and use it for the next thing you want to fry. No one will know you have fried fish in it.

To test your cooking fat—taste it. Crisco's sweet flavor will astonish you.

"There goes the old life," she said in a low voice, "Becky is dead. God save Becky . . ."

And meanwhile, in a high ceiled room lined with dusty books, John Scarlett sat alone, staring at three white ash in other flames. In his heart the words found an echo, for his heart, beating against his ribs, throbbed like the girl's voice, saying which he dropped the letters. Becky herself lighted a match, tossed it into the bowl, and watched the tiny bonfire flicker and die. When all was over . . .

So speaking Scarlett went into the next room, brought back the brown brief case, and handed it to Becky. She examined the letters and returned them to him.

"Is it while I'm looking."

"Right," said Scarlett, and, turning his back, he crossed the room and fetched a porcelain dish, into which he dropped the letters. Becky herself lighted a match, tossed it into the bowl, and watched the tiny bonfire flicker and die. When all was over . . .

Tomorrow—Becky's heart breaks in a session with Boris.

FRISBY CORRESPONDENCE IS GIVEN TO POSTERITY

Prominent club woman who has promised to support Frisby-for-Vice-President movement.

Note to Editor—

Before I forget it I want to give to posterity the Frisby Correspondence, as I call it. Doubtless, this will be of interest to historians and such.

FRISBY.

Letter from Mrs. Gidget:
Gallapolis.

Dear Mr. Frisby—

Your letter received. No, your name has not been mentioned by our club for vice president. This is a woman's club.

Mrs. Gidget.

Frisby's reply:

My Dear, Dear Mrs. Gidget—

I will be glad to become a candidate for Vice-President of the United States. Your letter gives me great confidence. I know of no one who has been more consistently opposed to vice than myself. I would make an ideal vice president.

Affectionately,
Nathan Frisby, Esq.

YOUNG WOMEN MAY KEEP WELL

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Here is Proof

St. Paul, Minn.—"Here is a little advice I would like to have you put in the papers," Mrs. Jack Lorberter of 704 Dellwood Place wrote to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company. "If young women want to keep their health and strength for the next thirty years of their lives, it is best to start in right now and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have tried the Compound myself and received fine results." In describing her condition before taking the Compound, she writes, "I was afraid in my own house in broad daylight, I used to lock the doors and pull down the shades so that nobody could see me." One day a booklet advertising the Vegetable Compound was left on her porch and she read it through. In so doing she found a letter from a woman whose condition was similar to her own. "I bought the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Lorberter continued, "and have had fine results. The condition I was in made me a burden to my husband. Now I ask 'How is housekeeping?' and he says, 'It is just like being in Heaven!'"

HAVE KIDNEYS EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

SAYINGS OF MEDBURY---BY JOHN P. MEDBURY

SO many women have given up cooking lately that the average husband is now living from can to mouth.

THE way to his heart is through the delicatessen.

HE hasn't had a home-cooked meal since his wife lost the can opener.

OINTMENT WORTH $100 A JAR

TO MAN WHO SUFFERED CONSTANTLY FOR FIVE YEARS

Healed leg entirely

Spokane, Wash., March 21.—"While working in a stone quarry, I slipped and cut my leg and blood poisoning set in. The doctor stopped this, but my leg refused to heal. It became a running sore and hurt me so I could hardly do my work. I wore bandages constantly for five years, using several remedies without success. One day a friend recommended Resinol Ointment and after I had used ten jars of it my leg was entirely healed. This ointment is worth $100 a jar to me, and I will never be without it in my house again."—(Signed) W. P. Bower, Box 593.

Resinol Ointment should be in every home. It's invaluable for cuts, burns, blisters, chafing, etc., as well as more serious skin disorders. All druggists sell the Resinol products.

Don't Squeeze Blackheads —Dissolve Them

Squeezing out blackheads makes large, ugly pores. The safe and sane way to get rid of these blemishes is to dissolve them. Get two ounces of Calonite powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a bat, wet cloth, rub over the blackheads, and every one, big or little, will disappear at once.

MODERN WOMAN IN INDUSTRY DEFENDED

from home gives her something most stimulating to talk about when she returns, than the mere mechanical details of housekeeping and the post-mortems of the broke table.

"Industry today offers the woman without training a dignified occupation in surroundings which form a hygienic and moral standpoint which were undreamed of a few years ago. Scientific management has done it.

"In spite of this, there is still an effort to set the factory woman off in a class by herself as though she were different from other wage-earners. She's not. She's earning her living, at honorable work and that is all any of us can claim."

BENEFIT OF HIGH WAGES.

General prosperity in the United States seems assured at least until some radical change not yet on the horizon takes place, because the chemical factors that underlie good business are present to an extent never before known in this country, the gathering was told by Ellis Whitworth, State representative and former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

These factors he described as confidence in the government, ample bread and regular home market and optimism productively low in cost and upon whom industry depends.

Foreign trade was discussed by E. Dana Durand of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, and William Wallace Nichols, president of the American Manufacturers' Export Association, L. A. Farley, director of operations, National Founders' Association, talked on mutual faith and confidence in industry among workmen, foreman and management.

'THE ATHEIST' TO BE FILMED BY DE MILLE

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 20.—The preaching tendency has again broken out in Cecil DeMille. This time he will describe the dangers of atheism in a scenario written by Jeanie McPherson bearing for the time being the temporary title of "The Atheist."

This is not to be the usual story of a man who does not believe in God—but rather the tale of a young girl who is so swayed by the customs of the modern generation that she puts all religion out of her life, sinking to the very depths before she sees the light.

Naturally, Mr. DeMille is not working with an individual in an idea of this type. The girl is a composite picture of modern youth and the picture will be another preachment with all the clamor and excitement of a DeMille special. With "The King of Kings" and "The Ten Commandments" rated as his most successful, as well as his best achievements, Cecil DeMille feels his metier is in establishing, via the celluloid, some lesson dealing with religion.

This is just a whisper and really off the boards. Many tests have been made for the girl and among those who remain in the final count are Leatrice Joy and Lina Basquette. Before a decision is made, there will probably be many other tests. Mr. DeMille never decides his star in a hurry and the girl role is the big thing.

P. S. He starts shortly. No, he didn't tell me.

SOME time before Rudolph Valentino passed on, an underworld story called "My Woman" was purchased for him. Rudy was enthusiastic over the idea, and so was John Considine, who had discussed it with him at some length.

John Considine has now brought it forth to be made on a large scale, to be directed by Henry King. It will precede "The Darling of the Gods" by some months. The title, to be a little slangy, is a wow.

I KNOW of six actresses who longed to play "The Governor's Wife" in "The Noose." Why shouldn't they? In the stage play it was the nicest role. Now all the contenders for the honor can concentrate elsewhere, for yesterday Alice Joyce signed the beefs with immediately. Richard Barthelmess, who plays the boy, is already on the lot—so are other members of the cast in the cabaret scenes, which are being filmed first.

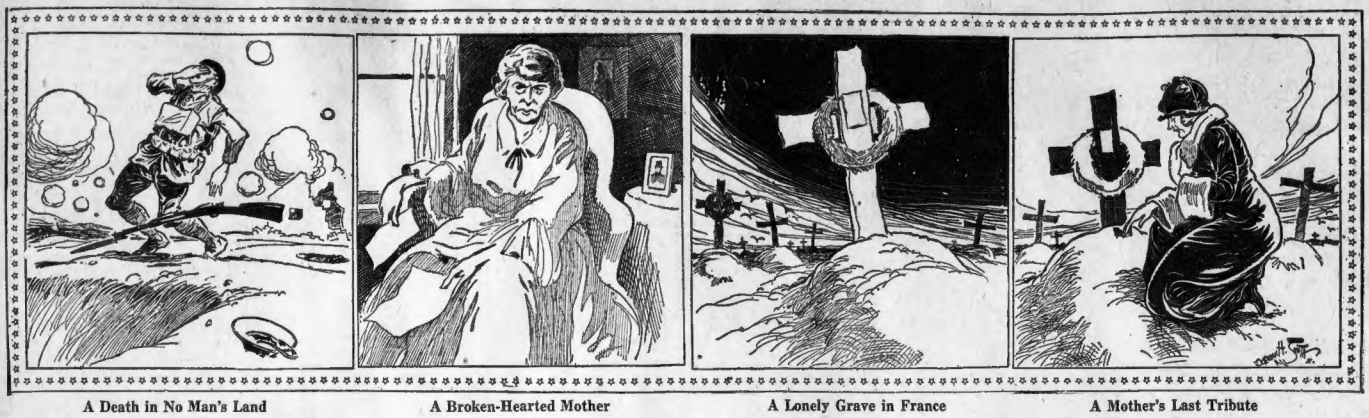
THE AMERICAN CONGRESS OWES IT TO OUR SERVICE DEAD TO SEND UNITED STATES GOLD STAR MOTHERS TO FRANCE



A Death in No Man's Land — A Broken-Hearted Mother — A Lonely Grave in France — A Mother's Last Tribute

CONGRESS has one great duty, yet unperformed, towards the heroic dead of the nation who fell in the World War.

That duty is to provide transportation for American war mothers to visit the graves of their sons in France, Great Britain and Belgium.

The sadness and heaviness of loss has been multiplied in the hearts of tens of thousands of mothers by the thought that their loved ones were to lie forever under foreign soil.

To the separation of spirit is added the separation of the vast ocean. All that remains of the sacrifice offered on the altar of her country lies in an alien grave which may not be hallowed by the tears and prayers of an American mother.

The country which received such a sacrifice cannot do less than send American gold star mothers over the sea to pay their last tribute to the boys who never came back to them.

OF the 77,771 who died in the A. E. F. during the war, 30,812 bodies remain in Europe, buried in American cemeteries, which are maintained by the United States War Department.

The largest of our military cemeteries abroad is the "Meuse-Argonne Cemetery" at Romagne-sous-Montfaucon in France, about twenty miles northwest of Verdun. It has in all 14,107 graves. The soldiers who rest there came from almost every combat division of the American Expeditionary Forces. Most of them gave their lives in the Meuse-Argonne operation, the greatest battle in American history and probably the most decisive offensive of the war.

Then there is the Oise-Aisne Cemetery, located near Fere-en-Tardenois, about fifteen miles east of Chateau Thierry. It has 5,946 graves. The boys who lie there are mainly from the Third, Fourth, Twenty-eighth, Thirty-second, Forty-second and Seventy-seventh Divisions, who fought in the vicinity of the Ourcq River and as far north as the Oise.

The third largest is the St. Mihiel Cemetery, near Thiaucourt, about eighteen miles southwest of Metz, with the graves of 4,141 soldiers. Most of these were members of the First, Second, Fourth, Fifth, Twenty-sixth, Forty-second, Eighty-second, Eighty-ninth and Ninetieth Divisions, which made the attack in the great offensive action of the American Army that resulted in the reduction of the St. Mihiel salient. Many soldiers from the Seventh, Twenty-sixth, Thirty-seventh, Seventy-eighth and Ninety-second Divisions also lie here.

At the foot of the hill upon which stands Belleau Wood is the Aisne-Marne Cemetery, with 2,212 graves, including 320 marines who fell at Belleau. The dead are mainly from the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-eighth, Thirty-second, Forty-second divisions.

THE Somme Cemetery lies near Bony, about eleven miles north of St. Quentin, with the graves of 1,826 soldiers, mostly from the Twenty-seventh and Thirtieth Divisions, though there are also men here who fell during the operations of the First Division near Cantigny and the Thirty-third Division east of Amiens. In Suresnes, overlookng the Seine River on the slope of Mont Valerien, near Paris, is an American cemetery with 1,506 graves, mostly soldiers who died in hospitals in or near Paris during the war.

The 437 graves in England are in the American section of the large British Brookwood Cemetery, located twenty-eight miles southwest of London. The bodies buried here were concentrated after the armistice and consist of those members of the American Expeditionary Forces who lost their lives in or near England during the war.

In the Flanders Field Cemetery at Waereghem, Belgium, halfway between Brussels and Ypres, are 365 graves in ground fought over by the Ninety-first Division. The soldiers buried there are mainly those of the Thirty-seventh and Ninety-first Divisions, who fought in the vicinity, and men of the Twenty-seventh and Thirtieth Divisions, who fought near Ypres.

A PILGRIMAGE to these hallowed shrines by 20,000 American gold star mothers would be one of the most solemn and impressive events in our history.

It would be a moving protest against the cruel and wicked waste of war which would catch the imagination of the entire world. The expedition would be a mighty crusade for international peace.

The trip should be made under the auspices of the War Department, which maintains the cemeteries and can supply guides for the European battlefields.

The direct escort of the women should, however, be provided by the American Red Cross, best fitted to conduct such an errand of mercy.

Here is an object worthy of the attention of Congress and of the country. In the midst of our plans and expenditures—unfortunately necessary—to guard against future wars, let us not neglect the final and greatest service that we can perform for the victims of the last terrible conflict.

A European pilgrimage of American gold star mothers, under the auspices and at the expense of the American Government, deserves the immediate attention of Congress so that arrangements can be made for the trip early next Summer.
